SECRET

EXPERTS STUDYING FRESNO'S FOREIGN POPULATION

Adult Population Must Learn English, Says
Mrs. Frank Gibson
Says Fresno Progressives
City Getting Ready to Do Things

"Fresno is a very progressive city. You are having some things done and the people are all interested in them," said Mrs. Frank Gibson at the Hotel Fresno last night as she anticipated the help that the commission on immigration and housing expects from this city.

Mrs. Gibson is a member of the commission and actively interested in the educational department which attempts to educate the adult foreigner in the English language and the customs of the country. In speaking of the work of that department she said that when the commission was first organized the education of the adult was looked upon with disfavour.

"We find a new attitude now," she said. "With the present war conditions it is generally recognized that the foreign adult must learn the English language if we want a united people."

"You know," she went on, "you have the largest percentage of foreign population of any city in the state. There is 32 per cent. foreign population in Fresno."

To Help Foreign Born
Mrs. Gibson told how the effort to help this foreign population to become the best possible citizens is the aim of the commission. Of the present trip Mrs. Gibson said it was merely a friendly visit to look over the ground and see in what way the commission can be of assistance and to learn what suggestions the commission may make to the city itself.

Camp sanitation, handling complaints, education and the housing bureau are the departments of work of the commission. Work already done by the commission includes the inspection of all the camps in the state, according to Mrs. Gibson. Other work accomplished of which the commission is particularly proud is the new housing laws.

"California has the best housing code of any state in the union," said Mrs. Gibson. "The laws were passed with the backing of the 16 largest cities in the state, whose cooperation with the commission aided in getting them through the legislature. The laws include a tenement, hotel and lodging house and single house section."

"It would be nice to tell you," she said enthusiastically, "that the Bonner Fruit company camp is built according to the housing committee standards. It embodies the sanitation requirements regarding plumbing and ventilation."

Praise for Superintendent
"And there is something else nice to tell you about your city. Your superintendent of schools Mr. Jerome O. Cross is very cordial. He has asked us to make any recommendation we can for his assistance."

"Just yesterday he made an order for a teacher to be out to the Bonner Camp to take care of the children there. He has also established three new kindergartens in the foreign quarters. The kindergarten is one of the excellent ways of reaching home to the parents," continued Mrs. Gibson as she touched upon some of the ways in which the immigration commission needs help from the interested citizens.

THEATER PATRONS HEAR WAR TALKS

Progress of U. S. in War
Told in Four Minute
Speeches

Fresnoans interested in the progress of the war, the money was not offered through the auspices of the "Four Minute Men" were deeply impressed by the greatness of Uncle Sam's preparedness taking the brief time that preparedness has been his ally into consideration, when they heard "four-minute" talks at four of Fresno's picture theaters last evening.

The subject, "Onward to Victory" or "What the Government Has Done Thus Far in the War," brought out a revolution of the advance this country has made since its entry into the European conflict.

The "Four Minute Men" and the places at which they spoke last night were: Dr. H. O. Hadden, Kinema; M. P. McCormack, White; George Osborn, Indico; and W. A. Sutherland, Fresno Photo.

In addition to the talks in Fresno, a short talk was made at Clovis by "Virgil" Scotty.

CHARGES LAWYER EMBEZZLED CASH

Former Client Causes His Counsel's Arrest on Serious Charge

Arthur Ellenburg, attorney against whom for the third time a charge of embezzlement has been placed in this city, appeared yesterday in Justice Graham's court in response to a warrant sworn out by Jake Rathenber, securing his release on $1,000 bonds. Ellenburg's arrest was caused by Rathenber's claim that the attorney obtained $263 from him in connection with an action which he brought against Morris Levy, Ellenburg acting as his attorney. He money was not for fees, but to cover attachment expenses. Rathenber claims and after the case was disposed of Rathenber asked for a return of the money. Upon being refused he laid the matter before the district attorney's office, and the action in which Ellenburg appeared yesterday was instituted.

BOOKS ON EXTENSION LECTURES AT LIBRARY

Books having reference to the course given by the University Extension lectures have been collected in the public library on one of the shelves in the reference room. The list of books is now completed, but those books that were not in the library, and which bear on the subjects of the course, have been ordered and will be on the shelves in a few days.

In the four years of the life of the commission we have always wanted to come to Fresno to study conditions, but never before have we had the opportunity," said Mrs. Gibson.

"And now Fresno seems just ready," was the optimistic opinion of the visitor who has already made up her mind that civic workers, club women and leaders in public improvement will help.

"The visit will not give a survey to figures we just want to know what Fresno needs and what we can suggest. After we have looked over the ground there may be something to say concerning what we find," concluded Mrs. Gibson.

To Make Detailed Study
Miss Ethel Richardson of Pasadena in accompanying Mrs. Gibson and she will remain in Fresno several weeks to make a detailed study of the educational needs in the city. Mrs. Gibson will leave Monday for her home.

Miss Martha Chickering, field secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for Nevada, Arizona and California, made the trip with Miss Richardson from the south and is accompanying her on some of her visits while here.

DOING WELL BADLY

The Congress which adjourned yesterday has the unique record of doing well badly. Probably no Congress in our history has had so many stupendously significant things to do, and few Congresses have more uniformly done the right thing in their final action. This Congress declared war, raised an army by conscription, established the food administration with simply dictatorial powers, levied the greatest taxes in the history of the world, provided for almost unlimited war credits, and passed what, of the urgent preparedness measures asked by the President, "The only thing in which this record of achieved results could have been improved would have been to pass at this session numerous additional bills which are now held over for the next session but which are certain to pass them. Just as a record of achievement, this Congress will stand in high honor.

It would be pleasant if we could but attribute equal eminence to the personal exhibition Congress made of itself. But it is a lamentable fact that this praise could not honestly be extended to it. Congress acted largely under coercion against its will and beyond its comprehension, driven by pressure from above from the President and from outside by the people. The things Congress did were the things the President ordered it to do, and the education of the people sustaining the President in these orders was not appreciably contributed to by the discussions in Congress. There is perhaps one exception. The tax bill in its final form had received its detailed working out from Congress. It is a humiliating confession of the inadequacy of our machinery of government that we lacked any fiscal system to propose and perfect a measure to Congress and to promote its adoption. The original measure introduced in the House of Representatives was crude and it was made, if anything, cruder by the action of the House. The careful consideration of the Senate Committee and of the Senate greatly improved it and it was further perfected by the conference committee. This is an absurdly cumbersome method of formulating tax legislation, but since our system imposed it, Congress is at least entitled to the credit of having carried it out. For the most part, however, the debates of Congress were the reverse of inspiring. If the people were slow in grasping the reality and the magnitude of the war, Congress was slower. Congress has followed rather than led public opinion, and it has exhibited ludicrous ignorance and incapacity even in following it. That a Congress which did not understand management nevertheless managed to muddle out measures which reflected understanding merely illustrates how free government may make a shift to produce intelligent government through stupid agents and inefficient organization.

We may congratulate ourselves on most of the results of this Congress. We wish we might be able to congratulate ourselves as well on the men who achieved these results and on the methods by which they did so.

NEW NATIONAL PARTY

The new National party, whose birth was announced a few days ago, will hardly manage to make much practical figure, and its chief tangible achievement will be the merging out of existence of various minority parties and groups. The most remarkable of these disappearances, if it were accomplished, would be the extinction of the Prohibition party. That, however, is hardly likely to happen. When, for instance, the Progressive party last year merged itself by majority action with the Republican party, the minority remnant declared itself the only legitimate Progressive party. Now that the organized portion of this minority remnant has merged itself in the new National party whatever remnant may still be left, would have equal right to declare themselves the only Progressive party and the process could continue without limit. All there was only one Progressive left. If the Progressive party was mergeable, then it is merged already in the Republican party. If it was not mergeable, then whatever is left of it remains a Progressive party. By like logic, if there are any Prohibitionists left, no matter how few, to repudiate this merger, they will claim that the Prohibition name and organization which its official custodians have surrendered.

The new party contains many good men and some strong ones, and its composite platform will inevitably contain some good policies. But when you undertake to form a new party by the union of many old parties and groups, none of them, like the Prohibitionists and Single-Taxers parties of but one idea, it is impossible to formulate a platform or to give birth to a spirit which will really represent the convictions of its members or which can really assume leadership in a tangible and coherent policy. Few Prohibitionists, for instance, know or care anything about the single tax, and no Single-Taxer will agree with what has always been the Prohibitionist party's contention that prohibition is the one all-dominant, all-inclusive issue. There are many enthusiastic Prohibitionists who are radicals on the labor question, and there are many Single-Taxers who regard the wholesale public ownership of public utilities as superfluous, if only their panacea were adopted. Such a party formed by a coalition of groups remains necessarily still a coalition even after it has assumed a single name and common organization. The older parties have at least the poor excuse of tradition and habit to maintain them until such time as they may develop into or give way to contemporaneously living parties. A new party must have more unity of purpose, more urgency of immediate aim, and more logical excuse for existence if it expects to proceed much beyond its starting point.

WAR BY MACHINERY

All accounts of the recent remarkable Allied victory on the west front indicate that the era of fighting war by machines rather than by men is rapidly increasing. The man-fighting in this battle was confined to the final clinching of the advance. A literal cloud-burst of raining shells preceded the advancing troops and the consumption of munitions per man must have been at least a hundred times greater than it was in the early stages of the present war, when it had already surpassed many times the most extreme munitions use of all previous wars. When wars were conducted by small standing armies, and death losses could be recruited from the nation without seriously decreasing the population, men were cheaper and easier to get than ammunition. But now, when war is conducted by nations in arms, no nation could long waste its men in battle and survive.

But if this war is to be conducted by machinery, it means that the energies of the entire civilian population must be concentrated upon the war as are the energies of the immediate soldiers. If it takes twenty tons of high grade munitions to smooth the pathway of one soldier to advance a little way, then many men, women and children must be engaged at high pressure in the manufacture of those munitions and other supplies, and money must be poured out even more freely than blood. War has become the hugest manufacturing industry in existence, and it can no longer be fought victoriously by hiring soldiers. We must all fight it ourselves—the women and children by work and economy, the men by work, economy and money. It means already in England a degree of industrial and financial intensity of concentration never before dreamed of. It will mean the same thing here before the war is much older. It means now the buying of Liberty Bonds by all of us, the cheerful paying of taxes by those of us fortunate enough to come within the federal taxing class, and the preparedness of mind which will make us cheerfully ready to divert our businesses, our factories, our labor and our personal services whenever needed to whatever purpose the war requires.

ROMINGER BILL

A campaign will start tomorrow on which for the first time in history the votes and drys can unite in enthusiastic agreement. This is the campaign for signatures to the initiative petition to put the Rominger bill on the ballot. The drys can be for the bill, because it abolishes saloons, and whisky does not interfere with prohibition whenever or wherever that can be had, while the wets can be for it because they think it is the only escape from prohibition. Whether they are right in their anti-prohibition hopes or not only experience can tell. But even if this enactment of partial prohibition should postpone complete prohibition, that should be no objection to it from the standpoint of the reasonable prohibitionists, since it is better to get rid of the principal evils of the liquor traffic now than to run a gambling chance of getting rid of all of them a little earlier at the cost of retaining all of them in the interval. In fact, for our part, we think that prohibition is ever to come it will be the better enforced for an interval under the Rominger bill, and that if prohibition does not come, it will be because the Rominger bill will have demonstrated it unnecessary. In either event, it is a great step forward which should be supported by wets, drys and moderates alike. The drys can of course in addition put a bone-dry amendment on the ballot if they choose and can vote for both. Then if both should carry the bone-dry one would supersede the Rominger bill, while if the bone-dry one should fail the Rominger bill would still be valid to eliminate the saloon, which is the worst social influence and strong drink which is the worst physical poison of the liquor industry.

The provisions of the bill itself are presumably well known. The bill prohibits saloons and permits hotels and restaurants to sell nothing except beer and light wine with actual meals, at meal times, in the public dining rooms. The sale of whisky or other distilled liquors is forbidden everywhere, and strong fortified wines like those produced in Fresno county must not be sold as beverages to be drunk on the premises, but may be sold along with beer and light wines in wholesale houses for consumption at home. The purpose is not to abolish drink or to make it impossible to get drunk, but to abolish those features of the liquor traffic which have been its greatest evils. The remaining features will then be put upon test, to survive or perish as they may justify or fail to justify their existence.

Increasing Our Meat Supply

Ultimate Effect of Settling the Range Is Growth in Numbers and Improvement of Livestock—Shortening Period of Production at Present Need

By JOHN B. KENDRICK

United States Senator from Wyoming

(Copyright, 1917, by The National Editorial Service, Inc.)

In explaining his recent announcement of a new and more rigid food supply policy in England, Baron Rhondda, the British food controller, declared that the danger of the situation does not lie so much in the shortage of certain meats as in a world shortage of certain meats and fats. Great as this peril may be there is very good ground for the belief that the American livestock producer will rise to the emergency.

No one could have met the representatives of the live stock industry who assembled in Washington early in September to deliberate with Mr. Hoover on the problem without realizing that the stockmen of the country will not be outstripped in patriotic effort and sacrifice by any other business men. They gave ample evidence not only of their willingness, but of their anxiety to co-operate in every possible way with the American food director in the production of sufficient meat to supply all the needs of our own country and of our allies.

DEATHS

WILKINSON—In Fresno at 27 Tuolumne street, October 6, 1917, George E. Wilkinson, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wilkinson and brother of two sisters and one brother. A native of California, and 8 years, 4 months and 25 days of age.

Funeral services to which friends are invited will be held from the Beall-Powell Co. parlors, 1459 Van Ness avenue, Monday afternoon, October 8, at 2 o'clock and interment will be in Mount View cemetery.

Up to the outbreak of the war there had been a steady increase in the number of cattle in the country. The receipts of the market centers for two or three years preceding the European war clearly indicated that the supply was sufficient to at least supply our own growing needs. The latest government census showed, as I recall, an increase of three or four million head. The reduction of the vast ranges in the west by reason of the coming of the settler did not operate, as many had feared it would, to permanently interfere with the stock raising industry. As a matter of fact the ultimate effect has been quite the contrary.

Under the closer supervision that has come with the increased number of owners there have been better feed and better care of stock, which has resulted in improved breeding and finally in increased numbers of the livestock in any given territory. The old slipshod methods, or lack of methods, of the range have been supplanted; the old order of few men with many cattle has been transformed into the new order of many men with fewer cattle and the production of beef has thus been changed from a speculative to a business basis.

Normally the increase which has been and is being brought about by this process would be ample to supply all our needs, but conditions begotten by the war—the neglect of stock raising in Europe accompanied by the destructive slaughtering of European herds and the lack of shipping to transport meat to Europe from any quarter of the globe save across the Atlantic—make necessary unusual effort to bring about a still greater increase of meat production in the United States.

The need for more meat is an immediate one, as Baron Rhondda has pointed out, and the speedier methods of production are therefore the most desirable. Stockmen will secure the quickest results by shortening the period of production, that is to say by handling cattle and other livestock in such a manner as to send the stock to market at an earlier age than usual.

Finishing the process of production in one-half the time originally required will secure the desired increase more effectively than doubling the production in the original time. This the stockmen will know how to do if he can be assured that their market will be properly handled so that the enlarged supply brought about by his unusual efforts will not be made the instrument to drive him into bankruptcy by underbidding the market.

The absence of an open unrestricted competitive market based on the law of supply and demand has done more than all other agencies combined to limit production in the past. The improvement of these market conditions under government

WILL MAKE PLEA FOR WAR BABES

Miss Ruberta Tanquary, Will Tell Their Story

War Babies of France and (standing) two children orphaned by war.

From the trenches of France, where she was allowed to make her way by special permission of the military authorities; from the homes and hospitals and infant crèches of France, where she saw hundreds of war babies; from homes where she saw suffering beyond words to describe and a fortune that touched her heart, Miss Ruberta Tanquary will give to the women of Fresno a vivid picture of war-torn France at the Fresno Auditorium next Saturday night. Miss Tanquary will lecture on "The Part Women Play in the War." She will display a number of stereopticon views presented to her by the French minister of war and never before shown in America. Her story is one that will reach right down into the woman's heart. It is not a story gained from reading or from reports brought to her second-hand. It is a simple narrative of actual observations made in the midst of all the trials of war.

Miss Tanquary will tell about the war babies that she saw—the babies such as those in this picture, children of war. To add to the atmosphere of the meeting which is given under the auspices of the Echo Avenue knitting club and is in charge of Mrs. George B. Church, Mrs. Nellie Barker will sing "War Babies" and Miss Mary, accompanied by Mrs. Romayne Hankins. The Fresno high school cadets will present a table of life in a war camp and will sing "Bending Tonight."

The admission to the big meeting will be a pair of old shoes, to be added to the Red Cross collection for the needy of France and Belgium.

Farmers who are interested in healthy stock have discovered that it pays to salt hay when stacking it or when putting it in the barn—They find that salted hay will be eaten up cleaner and also that the hay will not dry out so much when salted—It is a well known fact that salt attracts moisture and therefore hay that has been salted will weigh heavier than unsalted hay.

Bad Complexions Peeled Off At Home

The girl with the poor complexion complains, "I have to touch up my cheeks. I am sallow and a sight, and only my makeup saves me." Now, as a matter of fact, poor women spoil their good looks by trying to improve them with cosmetics. The practice certainly is unnecessary, now that the virtues of ordinary mercurized wax as a beautifier have become known. It has been found that the wax has wonderful absorbent powers. It catches the faded or discolored skin with it in minutes, almost removes it like a paint, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth, youthful, healthy, and free from all the blotches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy, and free from all the blotches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy, and free from all the blotches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy, and free from all the blotches and other surface defects.

However, he declared that there would be no slackening of the campaign against such violators as are caught infringing on other requirements of the law. Those without proper rear lights, those having but one light burning and those traveling with no lights will in no case be free from prosecution, but up to Tuesday evening arrests will not be made under the section of the law which requires that the shaft of light shall strike the road at a given distance from the machine. Chief Gochring and the city street department, working with the California State Automobile Association, has completed arrangements for testing the lights of all motorists and willing to come within the provisions of the law and a number of testing places have been

San Joaquin Light and Power Co.

Universal Packing company at Calwa will give to the housewives and the meat buyers of Fresno and the San Joaquin valley.

The cattle slaughterer and the pig slaughterer who has prepared his heaves and his pigs for consumption for the markets of the city—under the shade of a tree and then dumped his unwashed quarters of beef and hams into an unwashed wagon without waiting even for the animal head to pass from the carcass—this slaughterer might not appreciate the scrupulous care used by the builders of the new packing house to make their plant sanitary even beyond the sanitation requirements of the regulating laws.

No longer will the Fresno housewife be compelled to buy brown beef improperly killed and improperly kept. No longer will they have to buy hams and bacon and sausage and all the other products of the packer from the big houses of the middle west or the few establishments in the coast cities. Hereafter they may buy home products—Fresno-made hams, Fresno-made bacon, bird, sausage and other meats.

It is with justifiable pride that H. J. Douma, president of the new packing concern, and Barney A. Benjamin, the vice president, for twenty-three years associated with the Cudahy Packing company, take the visitor through the new $250,000 plant that rapidly is nearing completion on the company's thirty-six-acre tract at Calwa. It will be with pride that these men will conduct any meat buyers of the valley or any housewives of Fresno through the great, clean rooms of their packing house at any time they may wish to see what it means to kill meat cleanly, cut it cleanly, wash it thoroughly and handle it efficiently without the touch of hands or fingers.

The cattle and pigs, brought in from the ranges and farms, pass through the yards or pens. The pens are roofed. They are so built that the animals will be protected from the heat of summer and the cold of winter. And they will be kept clean, unlike the pens of Chicago and Omaha. Also will be to keep them constantly clean.

From the pens the animals will pass up the run-way to the killing pen. There the beef cattle are hit on the head and rolled onto the cement floor of the skinning room, where the heaves are made ready for the market. The pigs are hung by their feet on hangers and are carried along on an aerial track. As they pass the stickler each pig dies without suffering and, reaching the end of the track, the carcass tumbles into a vat of boiling water, which is washed and cast in a great chute that carries them to the hide room in the basement, where they are heaped in piles of equal size, carefully assorted and made ready for the hide and leather markets.

The heaves, after their throats have been cut following the stunning blow with the mallet, are skinned and made ready for the market. The throats are cut above a grating set into the stone floor and into which the blood flows and is carried to vats below where it, too, is made ready for the market. The hides are washed and cast in a great chute that carries them to the hide room in the basement, where they are heaped in piles of equal size, carefully assorted and made ready for the hide and leather markets.

The floor of the killing and skinning room is inclined from all directions, the slope centering at arched drains through which the water and refuse is carried away. And water is constantly rushing over the floor from pipes and sprays set in the walls—clean, clean water that keeps the stone floor of the killing room clean even while the slaughtering and cutting and skinning is going on.

And this same care for extreme cleanliness is exercised in every department of the plant.

The rooms where edible products are kept or handled are entirely separated, according to government regulations, from the rooms used for non-edibles.

The heaves, before they are sent into the sales cooler, are scrubbed with fountain brushes. And even before the animals are slaughtered all are thoroughly washed and scrubbed.

The sales cooler is chilled by a spraying system. The water passes through three eight-inch pipes and the room is cooled by sucking the mists from the air. The brine is in constant circulation and a dry cold is created which can be reduced to nearly any temperature, but which is kept as nearly as 34 degrees as possible. In this room beef can be kept for twenty-one days without souring at the bone.

Adjoining this room is the cut beef and pork cooler. Another room is set apart for the sausage supplies—all those meats used in the manufacture of sausages.

In addition to the cooling rooms there is a freezing room in which a temperature of 5 degrees below zero can be maintained. In this room there are 800 feet of air conditioning piping. Great care has been used in securing the cleanliness of the sausage products.

After the dainty fingers of young girls stuff the sausages with the aid of a machine, the product is not again touched by human hands until the markets are reached. Every sausage, except the dry varieties will be made at the new plant. As soon as they are stuffed they are hung on hangers and carried along a series of suspended rails to the different departments and into the smoke house. To avoid any blunders the sausages and the hams and bacon are smoked in separate compartments. The heat in the smoke room is received from clean piping, the cooking through the plant has been done by steam, has been only the perfect sanitary conditions, but also greatly reducing the fire dangers, hard wood smoking and saw dust are

Trusses Must Be Personally Fitted By Expert to Give Satisfaction

Don't make the mistake of thinking you can buy a truss like you buy hardware and get the proper relief

WHY TAKE CHANCES!

Forty-nine out of fifty who are ruptured can not locate the seat of the trouble unless taught by some one skilled in the business. They think they can—positive they can—are willing to argue they can—get five minutes explanation convinces them for all time they were mistaken. The chances are that all you have guessed about this matter is wrong.

A scientific truss should never touch the public home, never press the spermatic cord or any other delicate part, should never have under-strings, should always be easy on the back and should hold the rupture at the INTERNAL RING, so as not to allow any part of it to lodge in the inguinal canal. You can easily find the external ring, but can you locate the internal ring? If not, you are guessing wrong, for that is the "A B C" to start from. Trusses can not be made up like biscuits, and sent out to fit any stomach; it is more like fitting artificial teeth, although more delicate parts are involved in the fitting of a truss.

EXAMINATION FREE

You must have a truss for your individual case, and as no two cases were ever alike, and also as there are several different forms of hernia in the groin, the only way to locate what you need is for us to see the case. We will examine you free.

There Will Be No More Juggling of Stocks to Suit the Occasion

It is a known fact that clothing stocks in every city in the country have been juggled to meet the occasion. There will be more of it in the future for the woolen market is all shot to pieces it being almost impossible to obtain real woollens.

There is no juggling in my suits or my prices. I have just one price to all and that price is $15. I give you the best values that you can get anywhere, better than the suits you have been paying $25 for. This is because I buy better woollens direct than other suit houses get from commission men and because I have the suits made up at a smaller cost in my own factory and I sell them to you at a price very little above my cost.

COAL FREIGHTAGE

Would Relieve Great Demand on Oil Declares Ewing

SALT LAKE, Oct. 6.—Lower freight rates on Utah coal to California would displace the use of oil in many instances, according to J. C. Ewing, president of the California Fuel Dealers Association of San Francisco, who gave evidence today before C. R. Marshall of the interstate commerce commission.

The examiner is hearing testimony on the application of the Utah coal companies for a decrease in rates in the Pacific coast, for removal of a differential favoring Wyoming producers in the northwest, and for an operative rate in the east to provide for Utah coal markets in Kansas and Nebraska.

Mr. Ewing said that the consumption of domestic coal in California was about 500,000 tons a year. Eighty per cent of the coal was received from Utah. The demand for coal in California, he said, was such that if lower freight rates prevailed, Utah could furnish several carloads a day. With more coal being supplied through lower freight rates, he said, that it would cause less oil to be used.

From Chicago, Obregon planned to go to Washington and New York.

ADDITIONS TO LIBRARY SHELVES SHOW THAT WAR LITERATURE STILL ATTRACTS

By DAVID ANDERSON.

War subjects still form a feature of the additions to the library. Chief among the war books in the new list are Victor Chapman's "Letters from France," which are accompanied by a memoir of the valiant young writer and soldier who gave his life in the great cause. Chapman wrote to that growing number of brilliant young men who felt the call of France in her desperate effort to save herself and civilization. Already America has shown that she has the stuff that values principle more than mere money, and who are prepared to "lay the world away" for the foundations of liberty and happiness on earth may be made. The names of Victor Chapman, Alan Seeger and Norman Hall stand out as examples of what the highest type of young American manhood may reach in the way of self-sacrifice and devotion to a great cause. Chapman's letters are the self-revelation of a noble character whose death on the field of battle was a loss to his country and to the world.

Other additions to the growing literature of the war are C. W. Dawson's "Carry On," which is a series of letters dealing with war-time topics, and Andre Chevrillon's "England and the War," which gives a Frenchman's view of the position of Great Britain in the struggle. In "War Issues," Edward Eyre Hunt tells of the work of the commission for relief in Belgium, and incidentally he gives sketches of the personalities and influence of Brand Whitlock, Herbert C. Hoover, Cardinal Mercier, Governor-General Van Der Gucht and Governor-General Von Bissing. What America has done for Belgium and the touching gratitude of the Belgians are described.

In a somewhat lighter vein, but imbued with a serious purpose, is "Mr. Folio," a series of notes and sketches with the fighting French by Herbert Ward. Ward has given in the drawings and paintings in this book reproductions of his experiences at the front. The book is a splendid tribute to French courage. With pencil and pen he gives a vivid impression of the gaiety, kindness and tenacity of the French soldier.

The record of the Canadians on the battlefield gains lustre every day. In "Maple Leaves in Flanders Fields," Herbert Rao takes us with him to Flanders with the first Canadian contingent, and gives us in a light and humorous style a record of the work of the Canadians. It is written modestly, and is a fine tribute to the fighting qualities of our northern neighbors.

"First Aid for Boys" is a manual intended for Boy Scouts but should be useful to all boys as an introduction to Red Cross work for all boys. Mabel T. Macdonald in "Under the Red Cross Flag" gives a history of American Red Cross work. This is the only complete historical work on the subject. The book has a foreword by President Wilson.

A glance at the list of additions shows that there are many other books which will appeal to all tastes. Poetry and fiction have been provided, and in each class the selections are the best. A combination of truth and poetry is Alfred Noyes' "Open Boats." He describes the grim tragedies which follow the attacks of the German submarines. Noyes makes us feel the horror of the deadly drama which he depicts so vividly. He has several poems throughout the volume.

An abridged edition of Bryce's "The American Commonwealth," and the same author's "South America," should be of interest to students. The list is varied in interest, and the general reader will find many books to appeal to him.

GAMBLING ORDER MUST BE OBEYED

Four Chinese Attempt to Resume Games But Are Quickly Stopped

Notwithstanding the positive orders of Mayor Toomey delivered through Chief of Police Gochring, gambling manifested itself early yesterday morning, and, in keeping with their determination to keep the lid nailed securely down, the police made a visit to the suspected place, finding four inmates whom they found engaged in playing draw poker.

The raid was led by Sergeant Police Officers Kell, Boutan and Chapin assisting. The officers found a roomy place, the fourth floor of a building at 1000 E. Broadway, where the game was in progress, and, arriving there, placed Sing Lee, Joe Wong, Sue Yee, Joe and Ah Sun under arrest. The defendant gave a bail of $500 each in Judge Briggs court and will appear for trial at an early date.

Chief Gochring stated yesterday that he would drop in on every game that comes up—that the orders must be obeyed.

30,000 OLD SHOES ANSWERS PLEA RICH, POOR, OLD AND YOUNG GIVE TO RED CROSS

They drove up in monogrammed cars and left high-topped sueded of pastel tones; they drove up in lithe and left sueded less high and deeper toned; they walked up in groups carrying shoes of every size and kind, giving a census of their household; small boys came running and little girls came skipping, bringing their play-worn shoes; they came on crutches, in wheel chairs, and they came tugging at mother's hand and toddled over to the big pile and gave the dainty little shoes their dainty little feet had just outgrown.

They came singly and in groups of two and three. Whole families came together. No one knows how they came. But the endless procession began before 7 o'clock. There were shoes scattered around the fountain when the Red Cross workers came to hang out their flag—signal to the big-hearted to come and give. And it was long after dark before the toilers who had gone home from work bundled up their old shoes and hurried back to the fountain had deposited their last load.

And although no count could be made it was estimated by Sir Levy, who has charge of the shoe-day, that 30,000 pairs of shoes of every size, color and condition had been deposited on the great pyramid of shoes that at dusk reached to the top of the electrician from a base at least thirty feet square.

Lilly boys helped pack the shoes in boxes—Volunteer workers, great crowds of grownups and children stood for hours watching the big pile grow. And one pale of a girl was so upset because she hadn't brought any shoes and her mother told her she didn't have any to bring, that she slipped away, unbuttoned her own little sandals and tossed them into the pile. And mother had to go and rescue them, then stem the torrent of tears.

The spirit of this little tot was the spirit of all. Foreigners gave as freely as Americans. A Frenchman brought four pairs of new shoes; a Japanese brought a pair of new shoes and asked if he couldn't bring some clothes; a man, who said he belonged to one of the nations at war, but refused to give his name, gave eight pairs of new shoes; a cobbler brought four pairs of new shoes with wooden soles. He said he had made them specially to withstand the wet season in Flanders.

An old man made his way to the fountain and handed up an empty box.

stood upon it two pair of old fashioned high-top leather boots in splendid condition. He stuck a flag in one of the boot tops and hung up this sign:

"I've had these boots for 40 years. I hope the one who gets them will use them to kick the stuffing out of the Kaiser."

Then he went away chuckling. And another man came up, a big, burly fellow and stood up a pair of huge boots, such as leaguers wear, and on them he hung a sign enjoining the future wearer to take a kick at the Kaiser with his comfuttions.

As the pile continued to grow, all the sports began to be represented. There were tennis shoes and golf shoes and football shoes, riding boots and hunting boots. Scattered among these were dancing slippers and men's pumps and bed-room slippers and smoking slippers—the kind that always come with a smoking jacket on Christmas.

Fresno was not alone in its open-heartedness.

From Selma came a big truck load of shoes bearing a sign "Selma's Donation to Old Shoe Day." From Sanger came another truck load. Big boxes of shoes came from Reedley and Sanger and Lemoore. Early in the morning bundles of shoes arrived from other points by express, parcel post and special delivery addressed simply: "Red Cross, the Fountain, Courthouse Park, Fresno."

From Fowler 25 sacks of old shoes rived early in the day. And both Selma and Fowler announced that more were coming.

Toward the middle of the afternoon, the group of boys who had worked all morning tying the shoes together in pairs, began the work of packing them into boxes. It was 10 o'clock before the pile was rolled down on the last box.

"Do we get paid for this—us kids?" demanded a new volunteer of one of the boys who had worked all day.

"Paid!" shouted the lad contemptuously. "Gee, can't you do anything for your country without getting paid for it?" And he turned on his heel and walked away, disgusted. Then he turned.

"We got treated to ice cream and cake and soda," he shouted back, "ain't that enough for you?"

One of the boys, Henry Bischoff, was barefooted. He said he had no use for shoes himself and he didn't see why the kids over in France wanted shoes when it was so much more fun to go without 'em. Others of the boys, who helped as willingly throughout the day were O. J. Woodward, Jr., Don Thayer, Henry McFarland, Jr., Jack Brack, Alvin Drysdale, Fred Connolly, Leon Sobajim, George Smith, Edward Mason, Sterling Goss, Elsie Shekorian, Lewis, Schenck, Kenneth Goss and Leslie Goss.

DEMAND FOR LABOR SHOWS DECREASE

Fresno State Employment Bureau Now Fourth for Positions Filled

Seasonal work in Fresno and district is drawing to a close, but still there is a considerable demand for labor. In the report of the State Employment Bureau for the week ending September 29 the number of positions filled in the Fresno office shows a slight decline, and Fresno drops to fourth place in the order of supplying labor. San Francisco is first, with a total of 1,125 jobs filled; Los Angeles comes next with a total of 521; Oakland is third with 426, and Fresno follows with two less, showing 424 jobs filled. Sacramento filled 235 jobs for the same period.

Since the starting of the Fresno branch on August 23 last it has held second place in the supply of labor. The total number of jobs filled in Fresno by the State Employment Bureau since August 23 amounts to 3,134. Fruit picking and other seasonal work in the vineyards is now almost over, thus making the demand for labor for much work much less than during the past months.

Y. M. C. A. OPEN HOUSE PROGRAM IS NOW READY

Open house at the Y. M. C. A. will take place on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The program is ready, the building prepared, and a large crowd, Secretary L. W. Lewis states, is all that is required to make this annual event the same success as in former years. The public is invited, and a committee of members of the association has been delegated to show visitors over the building. Since the building has been overhauled the gymnasium and swimming pool look in businesslike order, and the teams are ready for their competitive games.

On Tuesday night the program will begin with musical selections by a quartet which includes Mrs. W. F. Leavett, Mrs. W. H. Evans, Z. Potter and R. A. Powell. Miss May Geraldine Parrell will give several solos, and Harry James will contribute a monologue. N. L. Lide, chairman of the physical department, will preside.

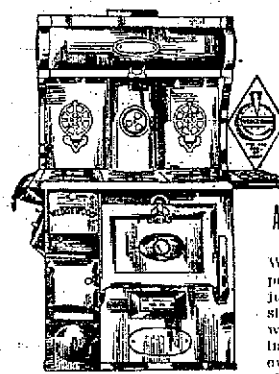

An athletic program will also form part of the evening's entertainment. Golden Long, physical director, has arranged for a display by the senior leaders of performances on the parallel bars, Indian club exercises with illuminated torches at the ends of the clubs, and gymnastic dances.

A Line of Magnificent Oriental Rugs is Now Being Displayed in Berg's Large Show Windows

They are copies of world famous Oriental Rugs and in beauty of design and coloring can hardly be told from the priceless originals—Below is a story and description of these beautiful rugs.

The Origin of the Name Karnak

4000 years ago in Thebes, the ancient capital of Egypt, on the banks of the Nile, was erected the Temple of Karnak, recognized throughout the universe as the grandest architectural achievement of that marvelous race.

This impressive structure, covering an area of 420,000 feet and containing the most wonderful apartment in existence, 312 feet long by 170 feet wide, is famed the world over for its artistic beauty and grandeur, its proportion and harmony.

Karnak is indeed a name to create the highest artistic ideals, and such was the inspiration for the extraordinarily beautiful designs that embellish the "Karnak" Wilton Rugs—the aristocrat of American made rugs.

The characteristic of leadership, artistic beauty proportion and harmony that grace the wonderful Temple of Karnak are embodied in these patterns of Karnak Wilton Rugs now shown in our window.

In the Center of the Window is a Superb Chino-Japanese Rug

This design is known as our Chino-Japanese rug and will create in the American homes the far eastern atmosphere so much in vogue at present—the whole forming a unique combination of Celestial and Nipponese art. The central point of interest is a representation of the Temple of Heaven, Peking.

The motifs on the ground conveying the Japanese spirit are the mysterious Torii, lanterns, banners, vases filled with lotus (the sacred flower of the east) and bric-a-brac so familiar to collectors of art objects, all surrounded by a most beautiful border composed of tables, on either side of which are panels filled with cherry blossoms, forming a setting far birds arrayed in the most gorgeous plumage.

This rug will be found to be not only a practical floor covering, but a most interesting example of industrial art. It is without a peer among products of American looms.

Antique Ispahan of the XVI Century

To the right is a reproduction of antique Ispahan rug of XVI century in the South Kensington Museum, showing arrangement of palms around central conventionalized floral form clearly suggesting the beautiful gardens of Old Iran.

The border has the Herati leaf form. The whole pattern easily identified as early Herati work. Coloring, slashed tan ground with figures in rose, gold, sage, blue, black and taupe.

XVII Century Ispahan Reproductions

To the left is a reproduction of a XVII century Ispahan, particularly bold and striking in color and effect.

Unique in that no two points are exactly alike in whole design, either in form or color. This has given great scope to artist and colorist resulting in rug of unusual merit.

Floral forms are shown growing from a central vase at bottom of rug; whole effect breathing the very spirit of Ispahan weaver coloring—Jasp old rose ground with figures in light blue ivory, sage and gold figures of same colors on slashed taupe-de-negre ground.

We Are Sole Fresno Agents for the Unfilled Grade of Brenlin Shades As Advertised in Latest Saturday Evening Post

Choose by this test and get Window Shades that wear—Fold twice—a piece of window shade material—Then unfold and hold to the light—if it is ordinary window shade material, you will see a jagged crack, edged with countless pinholes.

But if it is the famous Brenlin Unfilled Shade Cloth, as sold by Berg—you will find the material unbroken. The explanation of this difference is simple. The ordinary shade material is made of a coarse muslin cloth "filled" with chalk and clay. The strains and stress of daily usage cause this "filling" to loosen and fall out, leaving in the shade, as in the test piece shown here, a "mess" of cracks and pinholes. Brenlin is made of an entirely different material—a fine, closely woven cloth that contains not a particle of chalk, clay or any other filling.

In Brenlin Unfilled, as a result, has been perfected a shade cloth of remarkable durability—a material that really resists the constant strains of daily usage—a material that is fortified to withstand those sudden attacks of sucking, snapping wind—a material that the hottest sun cannot fade—nor the heaviest water spot—a material that is supple, not stiff, yet cannot sag, bag or wrinkle. A material, to sum up, that wears twice as long as the average—because from it has been eliminated that filling which is the greatest weakness of the ordinary shade.

How to Keep Well; Talks on Health

By DR. W. A. EVANS
Professor of Hygiene in Northwestern University and Former Health Commissioner of Chicago

It is estimated that there are 100,000 physicians in the country. There is no way of knowing how many of these are in active practice, how many are practicing in a limited extent, and how many are out of practice. Assuming that all of these are in active practice, there is one practicing physician for every 665 inhabitants.

I am informed by Dr. Franklin H. Martin that 10,000 have volunteered for service and that of this number 10,500 had been accepted at the time the statement was made. Thus, we see that more than ten per cent of the entire profession has volunteered. No other group of citizens has done anything near so well, in my opinion. In addition to this number a large number, but how many nobody knows, have money and are serving in other ways.

Since 1914 a stream of physicians has flown constantly to Europe from the United States. American physicians have been with every army in the field, not even excepting the armies of the Italian states. I know of one who has been over to do work in the English hospitals. He paid his own way over and served without pay, bearing his own expenses until his savings were exhausted. He was the only support of an old mother, whom he had left in charge of his house. He came back to his practice and saved up until he has gotten another savings account.

He is ready to go back and again serve without pay, and on his own expense, so long as his savings last. The 10,000 do not count men who are in the service of the Red Cross or others who are on missions of many kinds, both in this country and abroad.

It is figured that an army needs seven physicians for each 1,000 men. There are four physicians with each regimental command of 1,500 men. The physicians at base hospitals, evacuation hospitals, or ambulance train, and ambulances at headquarters, and assigned to various special services bring the total equipment up to seven per 1,000.

Based on this basis, the number of physicians who have volunteered is large enough to care for a national army of two and a quarter millions. The army, navy, and the old national guard have approximately their full quota of physicians. There are not included in the 10,000 volunteer physicians already alluded to.

We see that the volunteer system in vogue in the medical profession has produced enough physicians to care for more than twice the force now called for by the army. As Dr. Martin says, the medical corps is now more than a million ahead of the same. The first conclusion at which we arrive is that the medical profession is fully meeting the call of patriotism.

Of the men who do civil practice probably one-eighth are now or soon will be away from their practices. A short time back alarming stories of the fearful death rate among physicians at the front were giving the minds. These stories have been corrected. The truth appears to be that in the medical corps, stretcher bearers, ambulance men, and first aid men have a slightly higher casualty rate than men in the battle lines.

Medical officers have a slightly higher casualty rate than other officers. This is due to the fact that long

Chairman of Civic Department Outlines Activities for Year

By MRS. H. E. PATTERSON
San Joaquin Valley District Chairman of Civics

With just a glimpse into the year's work we see innumerable things that we must do, or assist in doing, for our city and community's welfare. The first of all, I think, is to improve upon our co-workers the power of organization. Too much cannot be said about this.

Some of the accomplished ventures of the various communities throughout the San Joaquin Valley are the clearing of back yards and the garbage cans. Incidentally I might add that this is to be a year of empty garbage cans owing to the food conservation. In speaking of food conservation, Secretary Lane has said the women can do a good fifty per cent in fighting the war by conserving and encouraging patriotism among the men.

The real conservation lies in the equitable distribution of the least amount. In this country we can only hope to obtain this by voluntary self-denials of the necessary foods which the army demands, also the voluntary reduction of waste. In view of the vital needs of conservation is the serious conviction of this administration that the FOOD WILL WIN THE WAR. Your co-operation is requested.

Other things that should be considered by the Civic Departments is: the matter of food inspection and sanitation, and where they have adequate laws, see that the laws are enforced, and places where they have not the proper laws, agitate the passage of proper ordinances governing the sale of foods, and the inspection of sanitary conditions.

The fly and mosquito campaigns might be considered again this year but should be taken up along broader and more scientific lines, also the beautifying of city lots.

Stations might be maintained where garden supplies could be had for those who care to beautify their back yards. These should be donated by those who have an over-supply of garden stuffs.

Appropriately of war times, too much stress cannot be laid upon the stimulation of patriotism in the schools. Patriotic programs should be given, and the most important thing is organized and supervised play for the children. Each community working out its own problems which makes for better citizenship.

The Civics Department of the San Joaquin Valley should be further concerned in raising the standard of citizenship among the women through a system of well education and matters of public responsibility. In this connection it means to bring not only its immediate members but all women interested in public affairs into an understanding and appreciation of local affairs and conditions.

The consoling of motion pictures should have particular attention to the children. One particular activity at this particular time should be the work of the Red Cross. This work should be included in every club calendar and certain time to be set aside for the Nation's work.

In conclusion, let me say again, in organization there is strength, so let us all co-operate in the needs of our district.

There will be a different public sentiment as to preventive medicine. The "several million returned soldiers and their families will leave the mass. It is incomprehensible that when an armed in the field has been without typhoid fever and ammalop that these diseases should be allowed to persist in civil communities.

My fourth point is that public health work will become much better done after the war. Health departments will be as well supported as police and fire departments now are.

TESTING OF AUTO
LIGHTS ARRANGED

District Attorney's Order
Followed by Service
From C. S. A. A.

Immediately following the announcement by the district attorney's office that the section of the motor vehicle law pertaining to the proper lighting of vehicles is to be rigidly enforced and all violators prosecuted, beginning Tuesday evening, the California State Automobile Association made prompt arrangements to establish testing places in the city of Fresno and other cities and towns of Fresno county, as follows:

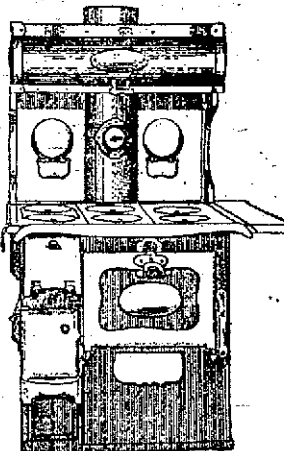

Fresno—(1) At the junction of 11 street and Van Ness avenue (Kincaid playgrounds); (2) Van Ness avenue, at the junction of San Bernardino and Hamilton avenues (near the Sperry Flour Company elevator); (3) Colma—Kaiser's Service Station, Fowler—Log Cabin garage, Clovis—Clovis garage, and Garage, Hedley—J. A. Drake & Sons garage, Selma—Trimes & Son garage, Kingsburg—Main garage, Sanger—Ford Agency garage, German—Main garage, Letona—Roy Hedrick.

Attendants will be in charge, whose assistance can be had in forcing and testing lights, and the numbers and names of owners of cars so tested will be taken and a certificate will thereafter be issued by the California State Automobile Association showing that lights have been tested and adjusted and the date of same.

The Association desires that its members, especially that all motorists are welcome to take advantage of this service, because it is becoming increasingly apparent, now that summer nights are over, the highways are very dangerous on account of improperly adjusted lights. The Association desires that the motoring public will help in its work to make the highways safer for the traveling public.

Every lot on Huntington Boulevard is 60 by 185 feet large in size with 20 foot auto drive at rear, 6-foot sidewalk and 10-foot parking strip planted to 7-year-old shade trees. Really Huntington Boulevard presents a veritable home paradise.

Modern Homes

All modern conveniences found in the home districts of the large metropolitan cities, are at your service—street lighting, fire protection, gas, electricity, telephones, sewers and water systems—ample car service and boulevards connect Alta Vista with the center of the city. Schools and stores are close at hand. In fact Huntington Boulevard includes every desirable feature that aims for a safe and sane investment.

Rigid Restriction

The most rigid restrictions are enforced—no public garages, flats, sanitariums, apartments or store buildings or unsightly barns can be built anywhere in Alta Vista—only one detached dwelling is allowed to a lot and the size and cost of such dwelling is also regulated. There is a uniform building line which protects your property and racial restrictions are extremely rigid.

All this—the biggest money making real estate opportunity ever offered—at prices way below real value is now yours if you will grasp it. The present prices are only opening prices—they'll go up soon—we expect a raise in prices before 30 lots are sold, so act early and get your choice of these wonderful lots at prices below their market value.

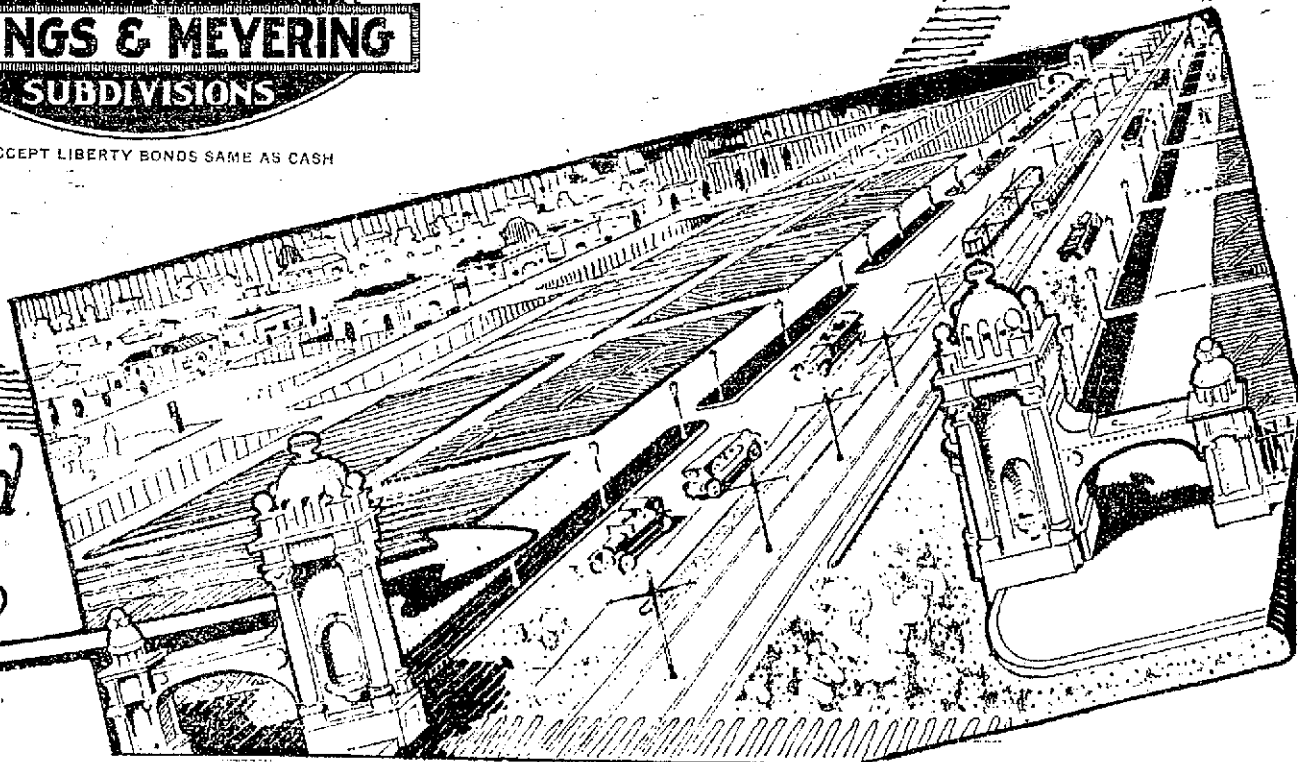

Just think—a lot on beautiful Huntington Boulevard, 60 by 185 feet, for only $16,000—as safe an investment as a Government bond and bound to be much more profitable.

Compare Huntington Boulevard with any other property in Fresno at anywhere near the price. Alta Vista property has proven to be the best buy in all the San Joaquin Valley. Why? Because it is the only real modern home subdivision of any size, uniformly laid out and beautifully developed. Go out to Huntington Boulevard today. Notice the kind of buildings that are being put up. Pick out your lot, and if you care to, we will be glad to arrange terms to suit your convenience—but do it now.

SELMANS TO VOTE ON BONDS TO IMPROVE ITS PUBLIC PARK SYSTEM MONDAY; PLAN TO PURCHASE ADDITIONAL GROUND

Center—Selma Municipal Swimming Pool.
Lower—Public Drinking Fountain at Selma.

SELMAS, Oct. 6.—It is universal comment, with new arrivals in Selma that the first thing to impress them is the spirit of enterprise and progress which this city shows in its well kept public parks. Selmans, too, have been keen to recognize the value of these public properties to the community. They have found that they are more than places of amusement and objects of beauty. They have learned that clean attractive parks, and public buildings surrounded with well-kept grounds are of financial value in building up the city. They know that these things attract home-seekers, and make them so well contented with the community that they build their own homes here. There are few homes for sale in Selma, and fewer still to rent, for its citizens don't shift, and Selmans feel that the parks, the schools, and the public spirit of the city are responsible for the contentment which this shows. It is with this belief that Selma has developed the city park idea in a manner which makes the town a model throughout the state.

Recently a substantial gift was made to Selma's park system by Clarence A. Berry, who donated a well-located piece of property for a children's playground. The city immediately purchased adjoining property to bring it up to a desirable size for play ground purposes, and the voters have already provided a tax levy whereby money will soon be available for the full improvement. Individuals have also announced that they would contribute generously for play ground apparatus, just as soon as the proper supervision can be arranged. This will furnish excellent opportunity for the children, and it has already developed that Lincoln Park is too small. This is the central park, and it does not care for the great crowds of people who gather for the summer band concerts and public gatherings. The swimming pool is also located in this park, and it must be expanded, as it is already a paying institution, and will more than take care of itself when additional room is furnished.

For these reasons the latest move in park improvement is a proposition to bond the city for the purchase of the P. Rasmussen property, which joins the park and constitutes the remainder of the block. Considering the park needs it is very fortunate that this property is available at this time. Rasmussen had already given an option on the choice corner of his property to the classic lodge, but they have offered to surrender their option to the city without a cent of profit if the property goes to public use. Rasmussen, too, has offered to take less for the entire property for city use than he could obtain in the subdivision plan under which he gave option to individuals. The property will almost double the present holding of the city, and the price is not even in advance of the rate at which the original property was bought five years ago, although surrounding realty values have increased heavily. Because other private options will be exercised in case the city should not purchase now it is realized that this is the last chance which the city will have to secure this much needed property, and there seems a doubt that the citizens will ratify the action of the city trustees at the election to be held Monday, October 8th.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN WORK OF RED CROSS

MARICOPA, Oct. 6.—This week's session of the Red Cross showed the interest manifested by the members, and the treasury was reported enriched with some much needed funds for the purpose of buying materials and supplies to continue the work. Selma Librarian Has New Experience in Storm at Washington

SELMAS, Oct. 6.—Miss Edith Staley, Selma's popular librarian, is relating an experience of her recent eastern trip which partially explains the smile of contentment on her return to California. The story is told in Washington, D. C., and deals with the weather, and has for its time, by way of contrast, the season of the year when the sunny San Joaquin Valley is making Sun-Maid Raisins and other kindred products. Miss Staley and friends were among the great throngs which went out to participate in the big patriotic exercises in Washington. They went forth dressed in white summer dresses, befitting the sunshine of the morning, but before their car had reached Washington Monument, where the exercises were to be held, the weather had changed and all Washington was in the grip of a thunder storm of terrible fury. The moment the street car entered the most convenient shelter, and they decided to ride to the end of the line and back again. The storm continued, and so did the riding for five hours, and Miss Staley is telling of her firm back and forth across the city for almost half a day, during which she paid fare each time the car started on a new run.

DECLINE BIDS FOR BONDS IN TULARE

Highway Securities to Be Offered at Private Sale on Tuesday

TULARE, Oct. 6.—Because in their belief the bids were not satisfactory, the supervisors this morning held up the awarding of $300,000 worth of Tulare county highway improvement bonds until next Tuesday at a'clock when they will be sold at private sale. With the decision to reject all bids offered today the board's plan to award contracts for thirty-four miles of county highway for which bids were opened Friday and the low bids held over one day was again delayed. These awards will not now be made until October 16 as the county must first have the money.

ORDERS TAFT CLERK TO CERTIFY RECALL

TAFT Oct. 6.—The appellate court of the Second district at Los Angeles has handed down a peremptory writ of mandate, ordering the clerk at the subject of "The Duties of American Citizens While Our Soldiers are Fighting and Dying in France." He sold in part.

We expect soon to have one million soldiers in France—the time may not be long before two million men, the flower of our American manhood will be on the battlefields of France, Belgium and of Serbia territory. The United States armies have never been conquered. Our soldiers will make certain the victory for our Allies.

Many of our soldiers will be wounded, some will never come back to the home land, and to the hearts that love them. There will be the glorious part to have loved and sacrificed their lives to make the world safe for democracy, safe for men who have the passion for freedom. Now the question that is up to us is this—While our American soldiers are fighting in France, what are our duties in this land?

Let me say first that we ought to be thinking correctly and righteously about this whole problem of the war and America's entrance into the war. This is not time for mental indulgence, for

NORTHFORK NOTES

NORTHFORK, Oct. 6.—The main event of the week has been "the big fire," which started Sunday from a point on or near the Knight ranch and swept eastward to Southfork. A world of brush was burned up and some fencing, but no buildings. Backed by a strong west wind the fire threatened Northfork and only a deal of luck firing prevented many losses.

The smoke of "the big fire" still hung over the hills when another brush fire broke out about the Jack trail place on Wednesday. To head this off the back fire line was carried clear to Pine Gold creek. At night, by a shift of the wind, County Supervisor Will Ellis' house was threatened by flying sparks, but a dozen forest officers, joined by Bob Ellis and the hired man, succeeded in removing the menace. District Ranger Wofford estimates that both fires together burned over about three sections of land.

Thursday Fire Lookout Bob Langworthy reported that drift smoke from the Northfork fires cut off his view westward from Shutey camp, while eastward little could be seen on account of a smudge blowing from brush fires on Daughton creek.

Ten days ago the thermometer on the peak registered 32 degrees, but since then it has been steadily warming up. Friday morning it read 58 degrees at 8 o'clock and by noon it was 68 degrees.

The white fire investigators at Ellis Meadow have closed down their camp, having felt and studied 216 white fires, the largest of which had a diameter of about 100 feet.

J. J. Hughes, the foreman in charge of the John Muir trail construction in Sierra forest, is preparing his report in Forest Supervisor Deneff's office.

Mrs. L. Talbot has resigned her position in the government office. W. F. Skene is now a temporary clerk in that institution.

J. T. Thompson and son, Scott E. Thompson, have leased their ranch and gone to the oil fields. J. T. Thompson is an oil man of many years experience.

Last Sunday Mrs. Mary Wright, the government telephone operator, was visited by her mother, Mrs. J. W. Fy of Coarse Gold. With Mrs. Fy were Miss Mattie Fy, Miss Gladys Walker, Harvey, Tommy, Fy and Mrs. Wright's young son, Arthur.

Mrs. H. C. Fugitt is entertaining her cousin's wife, Mrs. C. W. Holladay of Oakland.

Chief of Transportation Jim Cuddeh has met with a piece of bad luck. Wednesday evening his big steam automobile was burned up while at Bellview. The machine was insured.

James Hogue has returned from Fresno, where he went to take the course in civil service examination for forest clerk. At the same time his small daughter, Rosalie, had her adenoids and tonsils removed.

C. E. Barlow, who has returned with a fine two-point buck as a reward for his deer hunting in the Cranberry valley country, reports that he and Charlie Ross saw twenty-one deer while on the trip, all of which were shot but four.

Thursday afternoon Crane valley residents were visited by A. C. Balch and G. O. Newman of Los Angeles, A. G. Wishon of Fresno and Emil Newman of Northfork, all officials of the S. J. L. & C. corporation.

Mrs. Hazel Graft and little daughter of Fresno are visiting Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Austin at the San Joaquin power house.

CONTRIBUTE NUMEROUS SHOES. SELMA, Oct. 6.—One auto truck loaded to be entirely too small to carry Selma's contribution of old shoes for the Belgian benefit, and Rev. F. Carl Tracy, who had charge of the matter, was obliged to secure a second machine today in order to remove the big pile which had been collected at the street corner opposite the fountain entrance to the park. The showing for this city was remarkably good for it was not planned to have this city make a collection until Tuesday, so that many people did not learn of the movement until too late to participate in the donations which were shipped today.

OAKDALE ENGINEER RESIGNS. OAKDALE, Oct. 6.—Harold Rogers, assistant engineer of the Oakdale Irrigation district, has resigned to accept a position with a big engineering firm in San Francisco. He will give his position here with a few assistants to Burton Smith, chief engineer, who resigned recently.

Minister at Exeter Speaks Upon Duties Of American Citizen

REV. JAMES A. BROWN

EXETER, Oct. 6.—At a reception given to the liberty boys this week Rev. James A. Brown gave the address, speaking on the subject of "The Duties of American Citizens While Our Soldiers are Fighting and Dying in France." He sold in part.

We expect soon to have one million soldiers in France—the time may not be long before two million men, the flower of our American manhood will be on the battlefields of France, Belgium and of Serbia territory. The United States armies have never been conquered. Our soldiers will make certain the victory for our Allies.

Let me say first that we ought to be thinking correctly and righteously about this whole problem of the war and America's entrance into the war. This is not time for mental indulgence, for careless slipshod thinking. A man that is unwilling to take time to think clearly, and carefully on the entrance of America into the war, is almost a criminal, if not a traitor, to his country's well being.

"If we are to win in this greatest war, and not suffer Germany to put an indemnity of $100,000,000,000 on the United States, we must all think harmoniously, think the truth, think rightly, and all together, Right thinking has won every battle for human freedom in God's universe; wrong thinking means defeat. This is true in science, in religion, in business, in education, and in international affairs. Your patriotic demands right thinking."

"It is our duty to support our government in its purpose, and organization in this war. The American government is now at war with the German government. It is not a war of individuals, nor of parties, nor of sects, nor of states. It is the American government that has been attacked, whose perpetuity and rights have been imperiled. As individuals, and as a Christian people, we hate war. We did not want war—we kept out of this war even after our citizens were murdered by the German government on the high seas. If ever a people on the face of the earth knew the worth of peace, have wanted peace and hate war, it is our American people."

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA NEWS

AUSTRO-HUNGARY IS TOPIC OF ADDRESS

University Lecturer Gives Interesting Lecture to Selma Audience

SELMA, Oct. 6.—There was unusual interest in the illustrated lecture on Austro-Hungary, which was given by Dr. Jerome H. Raymond at the high school auditorium last night. The speaker gave such an interesting presentation of the complex political conditions of the dual monarchy, and made it so evident that their political questions were so dominant in the present war for freedom and democracy that his audience was unwilling that he should stop at the close of his lecture. Instead, they began to ask questions which kept him busy in answers for almost as long a period as his lecture, and thereby greatly added to the interest of the evening. As a prominent student of political economy, and a close observer throughout the world, which he has repeatedly traveled, Dr. Raymond adds much to the interest of a travel lecture, and sends his audience away, anxiously awaiting his next visit. He comes to this city under the auspices of the extension educational movement of the University of California, and last night's lecture was one of a series of six to be given on Friday evening of each week at the high school auditorium.

HELP IS NEEDED IN CITRUS BELT

WOODLAKE, Oct. 6.—Ranchers in this vicinity are beginning to know what they can do to relieve the ranch help situation. In fact, they are beginning to feel to the little extent the result of the national army drafting and an exodus of men from the ranches. It takes invariably in each case a qualified employee who is skilled in other words as an all the year-around man. To obtain substitutes has been proven to be no light task. At present there are several large ranches without the proper help, and the owners have made diligent search for suitable aid without results. The problem is indeed serious, especially to the citrus grove owners, while the big stock ranches, several of which are located near here, have lost several employees within the past few weeks, and to replace them is a hard matter. With the citrus shipping season close to hand, which will require increased help, additional uneasiness will have to be borne. At present there is a gradual influx of the Mexican population, which comes here each year. But inasmuch as this class of help can handle only a few satisfactory results, only certain types of labor, they prove to be no perfect cure. For the next several months there is much special work to be accomplished as well as the many regular ranch positions to keep filled and no help in sight. It looks at present as though the unfortunate situation would remain as it is and the poor old rancher be obliged to do the whole thing alone.

TORN FLAGS ARE REPLACED. TURLOCK, Oct. 6.—Following repeated requests on the part of local citizens and the newspapers, that torn or worn out American flags be taken down from public buildings and be replaced, the Turlock troop of Boy Scouts today took matters in their own hands and took down the flags. The requests previously made were unavailing. So Assistant Scoutmaster L. J. Patterson today had his troop divided into patrols, each of which visited the places in question and pulled down the flags. The Scouts announce that they are always ready to assist patriotic citizens in having their flags replaced and the government.

SELMA, Oct. 6.—A wedding which united two of Selma's well known families was solemnized at the First Christian church on Thursday evening when Miss Inez Ludington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Ludington, was married to J. Mordyce Malbary, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Malbary.

FIRE BURNS COSTLY RESIDENCE IN REEDLEY

REEDLEY, Oct. 5.—The home of J. D. Ballard was burned this morning about 1 o'clock. The place and a barn belonging to his son-in-law, M. O. Duffelbach, were saved. The loss is estimated at about $3500 in dwelling and tank house, with $1500 insurance, and $2000 in furniture with insurance of $500.

The building was a two story frame one situated on corner of Twelfth and M streets near the high school grounds. Mr. Ballard and family occupied the lower floor and his son-in-law, M. O. Duffelbach and family occupied the second floor. Mr. Duffelbach got up to prepare some food for their baby and turned his attention to saving his wife and baby. Mr. Ballard had turned in the fire alarm, and the fire boys responded promptly, but the flames spread too rapidly to be checked. The flames got to the roof and the Ballard barn, and the Barker residence, which was close to the burned dwelling.

The tragedy of the night was the sudden death of Percy E. Miller, one of the firemen, who was killed when turning on the electric current for lighting the town after the fire. The town is in mourning for the young fireman who met his death in doing his duty. He leaves a wife and two small children.

Billy Burke is to appear on Broadway in both her stage and screen personae within a very short time. Burke is already on the road with her new play, "The Recording Angel," which is shortly to open at the Hudson theater. It so happens that the release of this play will place Miss Burke in "Broadway" in the same production just one week before she opens at the Hudson in the new play.

The bread that keeps the family in good health is a treasure that no one can afford to be without.

KLEEN-MAYO BREAD is an important factor in keeping the family in good health, because it is clean and wholesome and made from these materials which your body needs most.

The constant use of this bread means no more dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, flatulency, sick headaches, dizziness, or any of the other feelings. It is a well balanced ration that insures continued good health for those that use it at every meal.

No other food can take the place of KLEEN-MAYO BREAD. It is a white bread made from the best quality wheat and therefore the most economical, for there is more nutritive in white bread than in any other kind.

It is so good that not a crumb is wasted.

The result of our investigations indicates that the burdening of motion pictures with the responsibility for delinquency is as reasonable as it would be to place the onus in a circus performance.

RAISING POULTRY for HOME AND MARKET

POULTRY PARASITE LOSSES SHOULD BE REMOVED

Badly Infected Quarters Follow Neglect or Indifference

Formulas for Fumigation by Formaldehyde, Lime and Sulphur

By J. RAYMOND KESLER, Practitioner, Poultryman.

Many poultry raisers, especially the amateur and the owner of the farm flock, never think of taking preventive measures with regard to poultry pests until the flock and house are overrun. When such conditions exist, it is exceedingly hard to overcome the trouble. The only effective way to fight these pests is to establish a rule to use preventive measures at regular intervals.

Lice and mites in the majority of cases are more numerous on the general farm and backyard flock than on large commercial poultry plants. This may be because there are greater numbers of small flocks than large ones, but it is true that one finds few really modern commercial poultry plants untroubled by vermin.

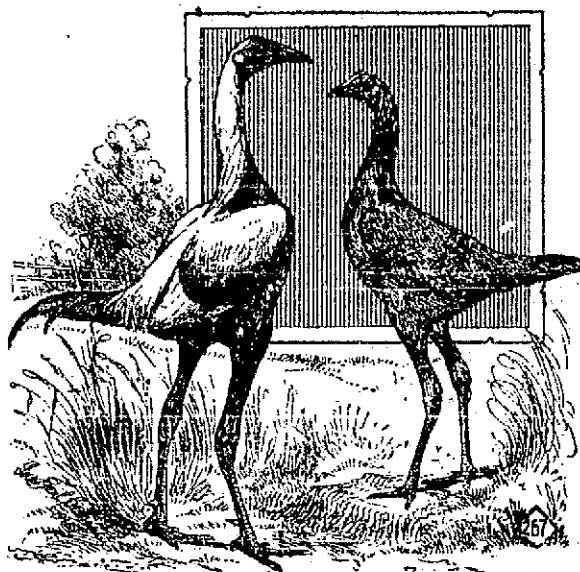

The reason for this condition in small flocks is usually due to lack of sanitation or absolute indifference to methods of prevention. If a commercial poultry farm treated the vermin question with equal indifference, the owner would soon face failure.

With modern methods of hatching and brooding, artificially, the chicks seldom come in contact with older birds, consequently, there is little excuse for allowing the birds or buildings becoming seriously infested. Nevertheless, preventive measures must be practiced from the very first. Like weeds, vermin seem to spring up from nowhere.

Neglect the Cause of Pests

Lice and mites are the most common pests, and the ones that cause the greatest trouble. Old hens show a few lice even where preventive measures are practiced, but this is no reason for allowing vermin to overrun the quarters.

Young stock, artificially raised in clean surroundings, should show no signs of lice

Silver Duckwing Games

The pit games of England were the ancestors of the Silver Duckwing Game. When cock fighting was forbidden, fanciers began breeding pit games for exhibition, striving for extreme length of neck and legs and uniformity of color. They developed several varieties, all excellent for the table, but none exception of as egg producers. Exhibition Games, therefore, have not been adopted by utility breeders.

Poultrymen strive to produce specimens until they are a year old. Chicks infested with lice mean neglect and nothing else.

Lice that attack poultry are of two kinds, common chicken lice and head lice. The common lice are smaller and attack chickens of all sizes. These pests live on the secretions of the body, skin and feathers. Frequently they become so thick as to cause death, especially in the case of young chicks and sitting hens.

A pair of these pests under favorable conditions will easily breed thousands in a few months. Female lice lay their eggs on the body, cementing them to the feathers near the skin. In about ten days these eggs hatch and it is only a with the longest and almost necks, short, hard heart-shaped bodies; short, narrow, closely fitted tails; extreme length of legs and thighs and brilliantly colored plumage.

The Silver Duckwing variety is strikingly colored. A silvery-white neck hackles, top of wings and wing bow contrast sharply with the rich greenish-black of the breast, body and tail in the male. The female is gray with a slight tinge of salmon on the breast. The hackles is silvery-white, striped with black.

short time till the young mature and breed more.

Dusting the Hens

The best way to fight lice on the fowls is with a dusting powder, such as can be made from equal parts of air-dried lime, flowers of sulphur, tobacco dust and road dust well mixed. In dusting, the bird should be held by the feet, head down, and the powder applied with the hands, first to the legs, then the fluff, breast and under the wings, turning the bird over to do the back and neck. The powder should be thoroughly rubbed in, particularly about the fluff and under the wings.

The work can be accomplished much quicker if two persons work together, one holding the bird while the other does the dusting. If the person doing the dusting will hold the bird's head, keeping the hand over the eyes, little trouble will be experienced by the bird fluttering during the operation. To be effective the dusting should be repeated in about three weeks to catch the new brood over and, in bad cases a third treatment is often necessary.

Fumigation and spraying will destroy all lice and mites about the house, and if reasonable cleanliness and disinfection are practiced, the dusting of the hens will rarely be necessary.

Most dust boxes are not very effective. Let to select their own bath, hens usually pick a slightly moist dust instead of the dry stuff most dust boxes afford. This slightly moist dust, if we may term it dust, has the effect of smothering all sort of dirt from the base of the feathers, leaving the skin of the fowl as if it were washed.

The larger house, known as the head house, attack young chicks about the house, frequently causing death. Head-hatched chicks are usually the greatest sufferers. Grasping the top of each chick's head with a little lamp mixed with a few drops of creolin will be found effective. The bird should be melted and the creolin added while it is liquid. Then use when cold as a grease.

Mites are more than lice; usually red in color, though their color comes chiefly from sucking the blood of the fowls. Their habit is to live in the cracks of the house during the day and attack the flock on the roost at night. They lay their eggs in the cracks about the roosts and nests of the house and multiply much faster than lice.

Effective Gas for Fumigation

When the quarters are badly infested with lice or mites it is best to clean out all litter and burn it. All paper linings should then be torn off and burned, and every corner cleaned thoroughly. After this the house should be tightly closed and fumigated.

For this purpose chloride of lime and formaldehyde make one of the most effective disinfectants. Place a pound of chloride of lime in a sixteen-quart bucket and pour a pint of formaldehyde over it, leaving the house at once. These ingredients act on each other at once, making a powerful gas. The amount mentioned is sufficient for a thousand cubic feet of air space, that is a house twelve feet square by seven feet high.

Where the house is of such size as to require several pounds of the material it is best to use several containers placed in different parts of the house so as to spread the fumes. The amount of material given will require a sixteen-quart bucket to prevent it from boiling over. The gas should be allowed to remain in the house for six or eight hours. The fumes are deadly and will overcome a person, so due care should be taken.

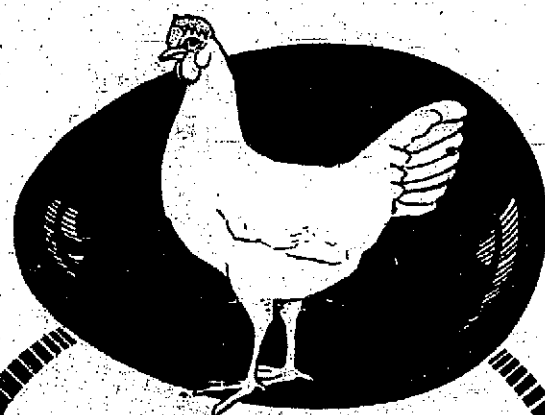

After the gas has been used, all roosts, nests and cracks should be painted with some coal-tar disinfectant, and then the entire interior of the house should be sprayed until the solution drips. Formaldehyde, carbolic acid or any coal-tar disinfectant mixed with water is good. A pint of any of these materials to three gallons of water will be strong enough.

Bedbugs in the Poultry House

The common bedbug sometimes infests the poultry house. It is not known whether they bother the fowls or simply live on the dirt about the house. From observation I do not believe they attack the birds. Nevertheless, they are exceedingly undesirable and must be eradicated. It is well known that they carry disease. Creolin and formaldehyde sprays have never proved effective against the pest. Formaldehyde gas is only partly effective, since it never seems to completely exterminate them.

The very best thing to fight this pest is sulphur, made by burning flowers of sulphur in pans. For every thousand cubic feet of air space three pounds of sulphur should be used. Place the sulphur in a pan and pour a little wood alcohol or gasoline over it and then light it. Only enough fuel to start the fire is necessary. The sulphur makes a very dense smoke. The operation should be repeated at least once within a few weeks.

The above methods are intended for use where the pests have gotten the upper hand. Under ordinary conditions no such measures are necessary. As a preventive measure it is well to clean all houses at least once a month, supplying new nest-

RIVERDALE TO MAKE RED CROSS RECORD

In a final campaign for Red Cross members, Riverdale rapidly is forging ahead to the 100 per cent mark and establishing a record unequalled in the county, perhaps in the whole San Joaquin valley.

A membership of 950 was the quota of the Riverdale Auxiliary of the Red Cross. It was their final goal. And with two teams—one composed of men, the other of women—they are winding up a whirlwind campaign that promises to end the week with a 100 per cent membership.

Helen, Harrell and Lanare are included in the Riverdale Auxiliary's district and before the big drive ends on Friday there will not be a home in the entire, wide district that has not been personally visited by some member of one of the membership-building teams.

The opposing teams have aroused the whole region in enthusiasm over the work of the Red Cross and the big campaign will come to a close Friday night with a banquet, speech making and music at a festive wind-up to be held in the big warehouse of the Summit Lake Lumber Company, selected because no other place is large enough to accommodate the great throng of Red Cross enthusiasts.

Among the speakers will be William Glass and Yip Frenk Scotty and others, whose names will be announced later.

Music will be by the Selma band and the office of the lumber company will be thrown open for the use of mothers who may desire to take their small children away from the meeting.

The two teams taking part in the campaign which is now in its close are made up of the following:

Women's team—Mrs. William Hanson, chairman; Mrs. A. E. Haskin, Mrs. Jerome Harlan, Mrs. H. A. Owen, Mrs. Orie and Miss Ethel Williamson.

Men's team—W. T. Hamilton, Dr. E. H. Brown, A. E. Hanson, George Craig, Alan Milnes and W. H. Galeonbury.

Among the Clubs of the S. J. V. District

What is planned as the most important meeting of the executive board of the San Joaquin Valley District Federation of Women's Clubs, is scheduled for tomorrow at the Parlor Lecture Clubhouse. Possibly, the most will not be achieved in accomplishment of any of the year's meetings, but the vital matter of getting work started, is paramount to any nothing of that contagious spirit of enthusiasm which always emanates from a full attendance of club women, each of whom is intensely interested in her particular department.

A light luncheon is to be served at noon, in keeping with the spirit of the day, and unfinished business will fill the afternoon hours. Mrs. H. G. Anderson, district federation chairman, and Mrs. S. H. Hall, district chairman of home economics are to be present at the meeting, and matters pertaining to the Council of Defense and Red Cross, will be featured.

The Query Club will hold its meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. Z. Austin, when Mrs. W. P. Miller will give a talk on religion.

The Parlor Lecture Club will hold its meeting on Monday afternoon at the clubhouse, to have a lecture on city planning given by C. H. Cheney, zoning expert.

The Leisure Hour Club will hold its meeting Wednesday afternoon at the country home of Mrs. S. L. Wiley. Mrs. W. P. Miller will give an interpretation of H. G. Wells' novel, "Mr. Britling's Last Thought."

The Wednesday Club will hold its first meeting of the fall season, at the home of Mrs. J. E. F. Edwards, 931 17 street.

Members of the Parlor Lecture Club are anticipating a delightful celebration of President's Day on Thursday afternoon at the clubhouse, when an informal program of music and readings will be featured with a reception following. Miss Roxie Russell is arranging the musical numbers, and Mrs. Fred Selwyn Lang, reader of Los Angeles, will give a series of patriotic readings.

An interesting feature of the occasion will be the word of greeting to be extended from the past presidents of the club, the idea being to link the spirit of the past and present life of the club.

The Friday Club will hold its meeting this week at the home of Mrs. J. C. Muller on San Pablo avenue, when Mrs. W. P. Miller will lead in the study of "King Lear."

The West Park Thursday Club will meet this week at the home of Mrs. Alex McNeil, when the afternoon will be given to the study of the United States army, under the leadership of Mrs. R. W. Rhea and Mrs. W. J. Glatbach.

The Collegiate Alumnae Association will hold its initial meeting of the season on Saturday afternoon at the University Club. Miss Ethel Moore, vice-president of the south Pacific section, will be the speaker of the occasion.

The Lindsay Club will enjoy an interpretation of H. G. Wells' novel, "Mr. Britling's Last Thought," at a meeting to be held Saturday afternoon at the Arboretum. There was a large attendance of members and much interest was manifested in the coming season's work. Mrs. W. A. Fitzgerald, who was the club's guest, gave a very interesting talk, which was much enjoyed and appreciated. The new program was rendered: Saxophone solo by A. M. Robertson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Harry C. Nutt; violin solo by Miss Edith Wright; solo by Miss Margaret Gordon. Refreshments were served.

The Shakespeare Club held its first fall meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Leslie Ferris. "Othello" was the first play taken up for study. The members of this club for the year are: Mesdames Ella Hancock, G. W. Thompson, E. O. Chamberlain, L. L. Bennett, E. R. Utter, E. H. Auneer, R. W. Gray, R. P. Surryne, C. H. Gilewold, J. C. Robertson, L. L. Ferris, Misses Marie Northrup, Margaret Bryant, Martin and Stella Smith, Grace Melton, C. D. Provines and Ida Karsten.

Mrs. Edith Barnett was hostess for the P. E. O. Club Wednesday afternoon at the usual study hour. Those in attendance were: Mesdames H. A. Russell, R. S. Marshall, Ira J. Clarke, A. Hall, H. Weaver, H. K. Pittman, G. B. Bentler and Miss Ida Karsten.

President's day at the home of Mrs. John Lewis, on Logan street, marked the opening of the winter's work for the Solina Wednesday Club.

Tall vases of long-stemmed yellow chrysanthemums and baskets of pot ferns gave a touch of color and a festive air to the large living rooms.

Mrs. T. H. Matthews, an chairman of the program committee, presented the year book and explained the work planned for the winter.

Mrs. Joel H. Smith contributed two lovely piano numbers, "The Platterer," by Chaminade, and Grieg's "Butterfly."

Two of the club's members, Mrs. C. E. O'Brien and Miss Edith Staley, who had spent their vacations on interesting trips through the eastern states, gave very interesting accounts of their travels.

Mrs. O'Brien dwelt upon the beauty and historical interest she found in Arizona and New Mexico, while Miss Staley had most to tell of our national capital and the surrounding points of interest.

Miss Helen Holden, a piece of the hostess, sang a group of songs in a most pleasing manner.

Musical games, under the leadership of Mrs. C. A. Harrison, were also enjoyed. A tempting luncheon was served by small ladies on the large screen porch, closing an afternoon of pleasant reunion and welcome to a group of new members: Mesdames R. L. Buchanan, O. H. Chappell, L. M. Manlove, Mary M. Royce and M. Shelton.

The Women's Improvement Club of Solina will observe President's Day at the home of Mrs. William Matlock Wednesday afternoon. This club has always been a dominating factor in the development of Solina, and much of the civic pride of this city is because of the accomplishments of the club. Mrs. Matlock has always served the club well and faithfully in other capacities, and her presidency is an assurance that every committee will be urged to the utmost to continue all others in achievements. The children's playground and an enlarged park are among the things to which the club is lending hearty support and hearty support with these women means accomplishment.

The Coalinga Parent-Teacher Association held a very enthusiastic meeting at the Sunset school Tuesday afternoon, October 2. This was the first meeting of the 1917-18 term and was a very auspicious beginning of the year's work. In accordance with the proclamation of Governor Stephens (which was read as part of the program of the meeting) the flag was displayed, and a patriotic number was read by the newly elected chairman of patriotism, Mrs. L. D. DeForest. Small flags were presented to each one present. Standing committees were appointed and vacant offices filled. The pictures were voted to Miss Portner's room in the Polk street school and Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Kratzer's and Miss Williams in the Sunset school, these three being for the high vote. The meetings were voted to be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month, the last one to be a social meeting. Mrs. T. J. Chubb, Mrs. E. X. Heinzen and Miss Mary Smith were appointed as the committee to prepare a program for the next social meeting to be held in the Sunset school, Tuesday afternoon, October 16, at 8 o'clock. In accordance with the proclamation of Governor Stephens (which was read as part of the program of the meeting) the flag was displayed, and a patriotic number was read by the newly elected chairman of patriotism, Mrs. L. D. DeForest. Small flags were presented to each one present. Standing committees were appointed and vacant offices filled. The pictures were voted to Miss Portner's room in the Polk street school and Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Kratzer's and Miss Williams in the Sunset school, these three being for the high vote. The meetings were voted to be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month, the last one to be a social meeting. Mrs. T. J. Chubb, Mrs. E. X. Heinzen and Miss Mary Smith were appointed as the committee to prepare a program for the next social meeting to be held in the Sunset school, Tuesday afternoon, October 16, at 8 o'clock. Six new members were taken in.

The first meeting of the Taft Women's Improvement Club, opening this season's work, was held in the Taft school yesterday afternoon, at 2:30. The attendance was very light on account of a large number of the members attending the Kern county

EXETER

Exeter club life is beginning to be stir itself after its long rest over the summer months and the program committee and officers of the Exeter Women's Club have had several meetings preliminary to opening the term on Tuesday next. The president, Mrs. P. A. Mix, is absent and so the vice president, Mrs. Horace J. Evans, has the work in charge for the first half year at least, and has made every effort to make the year an interesting one. The following program has been submitted by the program committee:

It will be an open meeting and the town ladies and prospective members are given a cordial invitation.

The Coalinga Woman's Club held the first business session of the new term in the Library Auditorium, Wednesday afternoon. One new member was elected to membership. Much business was transacted. All the committees and section chairmen who were present gave reports, and the work for the year was started in good order. After the business session, a short program was given. Belle House read delightfully three short poems of Ben King. It was with much regret that the ladies received his announcement

Overland

5 Passenger
Model!

More of the thirty-five horsepower Overlands are in use today than any other car of such comfortable size.

Year after year they have been produced in larger quantities and we feel sure with greater economy than any similar car.

Leadership for such a long, unbroken succession of years speaks more convincingly of the quality of the car than anything we could say.

This season's thirty-five horsepower Overland Model Eighty-Five Four is the best Overland four we have ever built—and more beautiful and more comfortable than any of its predecessors.

This season it is a larger, roomier car with a longer wheelbase—112 inches.

It has cantilever rear springs that make it easier riding than any similar car.

The seats are big and comfortable for five large people.

The motor is famous the world over for its wonderful combination of power and economy. We believe it comes closer to fulfilling the common sense requirements of more people than any other car built.

At the price—$920—it is value clearly dominant among cars of such comfortable size and power.

Come in and see it.

that he was to soon leave the city. Mr. J. M. Clarke gave a very interesting talk on the new water system, and spoke chiefly of lawns and trees. Mr. Foster of the Shell Co., divulged his methods of producing prize chrysanthemums. Mrs. S. H. Hall explained the Liberty Gardens, and talked briefly on food conservation. A committee on food conservation, a committee was appointed to represent the club at the meeting of the city council, to fix the new water rates, and to assure the council that the club desires to stand behind the council in its efforts to beautify the city.

The Tulare Woman's Club have taboed all the many purely social affairs planned for the club last spring, according to Mrs. A. C. Rosenthal, the president and the club exclusively will be devoted almost exclusively to the Red Cross. Only short business meetings of fifteen minutes in duration will be held as necessary to carry on the strictly club work.

With the exception of certain special dates, the club members are urged to report at the Red Cross headquarters every Saturday afternoon. It is probable that gauge work will be assigned to the club exclusively, as the making of gauge and pads is slow, consequently requiring many hands to accomplish the proper quota.

Except for the fifteen-minute business meetings, the following meetings will provide for club affairs during the winter.

October 27—"Landscape Gardening," Mrs. Sarah Childs.

November 10—"Garden Show," Civics Department: Mrs. M. C. Zumwalt, Mrs. O. D. Holmes, Mrs. H. A. Charters, Mrs. Ruth Tozer, Decorations: Mrs. R. C. Meyers, Mrs. C. L. Russell, Jr., Mrs. M. J. Sawyer.

December 1—"Charity Bazaar," Social service department: Mrs. F. L. Tubbs, Mrs. George C. Burnett, Decorations: Mrs. R. C. Meyers, Mrs. Kate Montg., Mrs. C. C. Pyle.

January 1, open house 3 to 5 in the afternoon.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The responsibility and integrity of a concern that you do business with should be no small factor in your consideration of purchasing a car.

A guarantee of a car's worth is of value only insofar as the maker is financially and morally responsible—based on past reputation and the likelihood of continuing successfully in business.

The Ford Motor Company this year will do a business of considerably over $250,000,000—entirely upon its own resources—no notes, no bond issues, no mortgages, no combinations, no watered stock, no monopoly.

The Ford car has back of it the biggest financial responsibility in the automobile world.

The Progressive Club of Laton met Tuesday evening in the library parlors where an interesting business meeting was held. The new year-book for the coming season has not been issued; the club women giving all their time to the Red Cross work during the summer months. Three new members joined the club, Miss Fanny Giddis, Miss Annie Manwiler, and Mrs. H. C. Blanchard.

The first annual meeting of the South Parent Teacher Association, was held in the Gilfields Lecture Hall, Friday evening, September 28th. It was well attended and the whole affair was a credit to the energetic officers and members of this new organization. The following program was rendered:

1. America, by the children of the school.
2. Address on the work of Parent Teacher Associations by Prof. Gray.
3. Song—"Hats" Ross—school children.
4. Report of the last annual California congress off mothers—Mrs. J. C. Cheney, president of Coalinga Parent-Teacher Association.

The fifth annual program of the Franklin Social Club is of recent issue, and despite the frivolous name of the organization, its year's outline provides serious thought for the members. The officers are president, Mrs. Henry W. Bonesteel, vice president, Mrs. Louis W. Scott, secretary, Mrs. Allen G. Fisher, federation secretary, Mrs. Louis W. Scott, press, Mrs. Harry A. Sawyer and Mrs. Henry Franzen. The outline is as follows:

Club Song, "California"—Thine, "America"—Henry Van Dyke.

I love thy inland seas,
Thy groves of giant trees,
Thy rolling plains,
Thy mighty rivers, sweep
Thy mighty canyons deep
Thy mountains tall and steep
All thy domains.

BAKERSFIELD

A meeting of the executive board of City Federation P. T. A. of Bakersfield was recently held at the home of the president, Mrs. Cyril Garrett. A meeting will be held every month on the last Saturday of the month to discuss better the developments of the P. T. A. Some of the matters taken up were the "Better Babies" contest, which will not be held until spring; the school gardens; the grounds. With the approval of the executive board of the Red Cross it was decided to have an Old Magazines-Paper month, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross; request of appointment of a legislation chairman in each P. T. A. each one to give a five-minute speech at their own P. T. A. meetings.

A beautiful tribute was paid to Mrs. A. Harris whose death removed the last of the charter members of the club, just one year ago. The new year book contains a page to her memory.

A letter of appreciation from H. A. Harris was read before the company. A flowered lunch was served cafeteria style in the dining room, where the company enjoyed an hour of conversation and renewal of friendships.

TO THOSE WHO HAVE THOUGHT OF BUYING A CHALMERS CAR

An arrangement has been effected whereby the Maxwell Motor Company has leased for a period of five years the properties of the Chalmers Motor Company.

The immediate effect of this transaction is:

1. The Chalmers car will be continued under the Chalmers name for a period of five years.
2. Those distributors or dealers who have been successfully marketing the Chalmers car will continue to do so.

The appraisers of the property and their engineers report the current Chalmers model a good car and the Chalmers plant a wonderful factory. The first move we have made is to increase the efficiency of the Chalmers organization.

The second move was to place behind the Chalmers car the resources of the Maxwell Motor Company.

This is a business transaction between two automobile companies of probably no more than ordinary interest to the public but important to you if you have thought of buying a Chalmers for these obvious reasons:

1. You obtain a good car.
2. You obtain a car produced in a magnificently equipped plant.
3. You obtain a car produced by an organization materially strengthened by the addition of able executives.
4. You obtain a car produced by an organization materially strengthened by additional financial resources.
5. You obtain a car from a distributor or dealer who will have the support of this organization.

In this way all three of us prosper in the transaction.

MOTORTING PROBLEMS SOLVED For REPUBLICAN READERS

In a recent issue you stated that compression cocks could be used to see if the engine is running. When I open mine there is a rush of gas from each one but I can see no flame. Does this show that the engine is not developing full power? Would adjusting the carburetor for a better mixture help matters in any extent?

Ans.—Unless the flame is stopped or seen at night it is not always visible. Sometimes opening throttle and speeding up engine will bring out the flame more strongly. Do not condemn the carburetor adjustment on the evidence of the flame alone. Try out engine by speeding up or rapidly on a level road to see if it picks up speed quickly and evenly without missing.

Other things being equal, which is the better gasoline fuel system, pressure or vacuum. Why is the vacuum system so little used now?

Ans.—Because there is no room under the front seat for the large amount of gasoline required. There seems to be little choice between air pressure and vacuum. Each has its advantages and defects. An each system is used on a large number of cars the defects do not seem to be serious.

I have a Ford Touring car 1916 Model, which is a new car. Last Saturday I used 58.3 miles on 12 gals. of gasoline, which amounts to about 14 to 15 miles on a gallon. This is all that I am getting at the present time. I have gotten 20 to 25 miles before, and cannot see or know where the trouble lays. (2) Also when the engine is running there is a noise some-thing like a hissing noise which I cannot locate. (3) How is the best way to gauge mileage on gasoline without measuring with the rule. (4) Also when my car is running on a moderate speed there seems to be a grinding noise which I can't locate.

Ans.—There may be something the matter with the rings or cylinders scored or other trouble, requiring a general overhauling. The noise may come from a joint of the exhaust pipe. Tighten up the bolts. If gas still escapes from them replace the gaskets. A good way to gauge mileage is to fill the tank, which holds ten gallons. Read mileage on speedometer. Run until tank is empty and again note speedometer reading. The miles per gallon will be one-tenth the difference between the two readings. The grinding noise may be worn differential. Use a heavier grease or have differential overhauled.

I have a 1914 Ford and it misses when the lights are on. I use a V-12 engine power bulb. Will I need a new magneto or new wires on the lines? Can I get a test on my magneto and what should I test. I use a Regulator switch. Does it keep back any current? I would like to know where I could get a book on vulcanizing tires and tubes.

Ans.—If you are sure the wires are in good condition and make proper contact the magneto must be weak. As they are very cheap, it will pay to have new ones installed. We are not familiar with the Regulator switch. Connect the wires across the switch and try the lights. If they burn correctly the fault is in the magneto. Look in the advertising pages of any automobile magazine for manufacturers of vulcanizing outfits. They will give you all the information necessary.

I have a 1914 Saxon Four, Alwater Kent Ignition. Can you advise me how to change ignition to Bosch Magneto? I run gear with sprockets and chain off the belt on the camshaft. I don't know where to obtain sprocket for camshaft. I have a six-tooth sprocket. Bosch D 81 magneto with sprocket attached. Your suggestion will surely be appreciated. Does mag. run anticlockwise?

Ans.—Your magneto must run at crankshaft speed (double that of camshaft). Get a sprocket twice the size of the one on magneto from any dealer in gears. Consult telephone directory. Set No. 1 cylinder at dead center, between compression and power strokes and adjust the camshaft. Points about to separate. Note where distributor brush points and connect that terminal to No. 1 spark plug. Wire remaining plugs in firing order. Connect No. 1 of coil to battery circuit breaker. No. 2 to magneto armature. No. 3 to collector brush. No. 4 to ground. No. 5 to negative of battery and No. 6 to frame of car. Positive of battery should be connected to frame.

I have a 1915 Model. Waxwell with which I have had a little trouble in starting. When I want to start on the starter it will not respond as easily as it should. I have recently had the starting system looked over and it only worked for a while. If I crank her she will start after a few turns. Any advice you may give on this matter I will be very grateful for.

Ans.—Either the starting system is at fault, ignition is weak, or mixture is not strong enough for starting. If battery is up to full strength some wire may not make a good contact. Disconnect a wire from spark plug and get one-fourth inch from head of plug. Use starter and now if it cranks engine at usual speed and a good spark jumps from plug wire. Then inspect priming device to see if it is correctly set to give a strong mixture for starting.

I have a Hecley Davidson Motor Cycle which has been painted over the name. I have bought transfers with the name on, but am at a loss to know whether to use water of some other liquid to transfer name to machine. An answer from you would be greatly appreciated by me.

Ans.—Transfer labels usually have enough adhesive material in the wax that they merely require water to prepare them for use. Wipe the surface perfectly clean and cover with clean varnish after the transfer is thoroughly dried.

A cotter pin in the clutch finger at my 1917 Ford broke and lodged in the magneto. It has stopped motor once by becoming lodged against the magneto point, but I did not have the necessary tools with me to reach it. Will it cause trouble at any place except magneto point? I removed transmission cover but was unable to find it.

Ans.—It might get into the oil pipe and clog that. The chance is very remote, however. Remove drain plug at bottom of oil sump and run engine a few minutes and the pin will probably drop out.

I have an E. M. F. 30 which runs O. K. except a noise which seems to come from the differential. When car is running in first or second, or when climbing a hill, it is not noticeable, but when running on level roads it will go swish-swish-swish. Sometimes it will run fifty or a hundred feet. K. then will begin again. Do you think the differential ring gear or drive pinion is worn or what? The transmission gears are good. Thinking you for your advice, I remain, O. E. Mc.

Ans.—We are inclined to think that the trouble is not in any part of the mechanism, as that would give a metallic sound. It would seem to be something wrong with a wheel or something touching the body as it shakes up and down. Careful inspection can determine that.

Will you please answer these questions: I have a 1905 car. It had a six-cylinder engine in it; the bore was 4 1/2 inches, and stroke 6 inches; ran about 9000 m. p. I now have an opposed engine in it, the bore is 3 1/2 inches and stroke 3 1/2 inches; 1900 R. P. M. I would like to know if this two-cylinder engine will run the auto as well as the one cylinder. I have tried it, but it does not seem to work well. The motor is air-cooled; the fly-wheel has a large fan, and the motor is horizontal. It seems to lose compression after it runs awhile. The gear ratio is the same as when the other engine was in the auto. S. L. Chalmers.

Ans.—The two-cylinder motor, if in proper condition should develop considerably more power than a single-cylinder. If it does not, the compression may be weak, the bearings too tight or out of line, or it may need lubrication. If it seems to lose compression, it shows that the power is not lost through friction. Warm up the motor and test the compression. If compression is lost on heating up, the valve stems or valve lifters need setting. If there is no adjustment on valve lifters filed. The space between them when the engine is cold should be one-sixty-fourth inch. Remember to test compression while engine is hot, but to adjust valve the ends of the valve stems should be lifted while engine is cold.

When the Commission on Household Employment, with such national names as Elizabeth Dodge and Ida Tarbell reported to the last national convention of the Y. W. C. A., they outlined in very definite terms the results of their careful investigations. The summary of the answers received from 285 cities, supporting women, selecting five cities from the Pacific coast to New England, 112 in household work, 137 in factories, 15 in department stores and 35 in offices, was as follows:

1. Household employment carries within itself no objectionable features, is healthful, pays well.

2. Household employment is performed under conditions which prevent self-direction and personal life.

3. These conditions are: 1. Servile treatment by employer and public. 2. Long and irregular hours. 3. The second condition, long and irregular hours, is the major condition in the eyes of this committee because they payed by a series of logical reasons that if the hours for household labor were made regular and of reasonable length, the servile treatment by employer and the public would eventually disappear.

The commission concludes that the task of creating out of household work an occupation which will bring satisfaction to employer and employee alike is not a small or easy one; neither is it one that can be easily brushed aside to be taken up at some future date.

If that was true in 1915 it is more true today. The new minimum wage law, the legislative pressure making the reasonable national women's working day eight hours and the mobilization of women for new industrial service will continue to decrease the numbers of indigent, ambitious women entering domestic service.

However inconvenient it may be to the individual home the student of the employment problem concludes that American women must plan household work in as far as possible in definite pieces, thus allowing each woman a family for self-direction and self-development with the office, store and other industrial workers. Some one has said when one big job is being done then is the best time to clean up the state. Perhaps today when the great war is upon us, when every woman employer and employee is touched with the world's sorrow, perhaps this very day is the time when we as patriotic women shall solve for all time our domestic problems. It can be done and a larger number of American girls must be shown the advantages of working in homes for we cannot depend entirely upon immigrants in the employ side of this big problem.

ELECTRIC HAIRCUTTER.
By means of an electric haircutting machine recently developed it is said that the barber can do his work in five minutes, and records of three-minute haircuts have been made. The haircutting machine is driven by a motor rated at one-twentieth horse-power, through a flexible shaft and a worm in the haircutter proper. A crank attached to the motor operates the clipper with a sliding motion. It is claimed that the electric haircutter performs its function in a short time and with small discomfort to customers. In order to increase the usefulness of this device the haircutter can be removed and attached to the flexible shaft in a few seconds. Scientific American.

HELPFUL HINTS

Do not run your car on the hill-miles principle only looking after certain parts when they get out of order. To do this is to court disaster. Make a list of things that should be done before each trip and post it up before you in your garage, such as, gasoline, oil, water, air in tires, etc.

Carry another flat on your car of accessories that should always be taken and check it up once a week, such as, jack, chain, tow rope, fire extinguisher, tire repair kit, cotton waste, etc. Replace missing articles and you will avoid delays when they are needed.

It will soon be time to cover up part of the radiator so as not to get too great a cooling effect during the cold weather. Some drivers fasten a piece of cardboard in front of the radiator, which does not improve its looks. Some use a sheet of tin or brass iron, which is apt to be noisy.

Use a strip of fiber board, covering about half the radiator and fasten it at the back where it will not show. Do not run wire around the radiator tubes for this as it may start a leak. Use the holes through which the radiator is fastened, at the sides of the radiator.

While using hydrometer do not remove end of tube from filling hole as acid is apt to drop on top of battery. If it drops on battery terminals it will corrode them, causing a circuit in the circuit which will be difficult to locate and remedy.

A cotter pin in the clutch finger at my 1917 Ford broke and lodged in the magneto. It has stopped motor once by becoming lodged against the magneto point, but I did not have the necessary tools with me to reach it. Will it cause trouble at any place except magneto point? I removed transmission cover but was unable to find it.

Ans.—It might get into the oil pipe and clog that. The chance is very remote, however. Remove drain plug at bottom of oil sump and run engine a few minutes and the pin will probably drop out.

I have an E. M. F. 30 which runs O. K. except a noise which seems to come from the differential. When car is running in first or second, or when climbing a hill, it is not noticeable, but when running on level roads it will go swish-swish-swish. Sometimes it will run fifty or a hundred feet. K. then will begin again. Do you think the differential ring gear or drive pinion is worn or what? The transmission gears are good. Thinking you for your advice, I remain, O. E. Mc.

Ans.—We are inclined to think that the trouble is not in any part of the mechanism, as that would give a metallic sound. It would seem to be something wrong with a wheel or something touching the body as it shakes up and down. Careful inspection can determine that.

Will you please answer these questions: I have a 1905 car. It had a six-cylinder engine in it; the bore was 4 1/2 inches, and stroke 6 inches; ran about 9000 m. p. I now have an opposed engine in it, the bore is 3 1/2 inches and stroke 3 1/2 inches; 1900 R. P. M. I would like to know if this two-cylinder engine will run the auto as well as the one cylinder. I have tried it, but it does not seem to work well. The motor is air-cooled; the fly-wheel has a large fan, and the motor is horizontal. It seems to lose compression after it runs awhile. The gear ratio is the same as when the other engine was in the auto. S. L. Chalmers.

Ans.—The two-cylinder motor, if in proper condition should develop considerably more power than a single-cylinder. If it does not, the compression may be weak, the bearings too tight or out of line, or it may need lubrication. If it seems to lose compression, it shows that the power is not lost through friction. Warm up the motor and test the compression. If compression is lost on heating up, the valve stems or valve lifters need setting. If there is no adjustment on valve lifters filed. The space between them when the engine is cold should be one-sixty-fourth inch. Remember to test compression while engine is hot, but to adjust valve the ends of the valve stems should be lifted while engine is cold.

When the Commission on Household Employment, with such national names as Elizabeth Dodge and Ida Tarbell reported to the last national convention of the Y. W. C. The summary of the answers received from 285 cities, supporting women, selecting five cities from the Pacific coast to New England, 112 in household work, 137 in factories, 15 in department stores and 35 in offices, was as follows:

1. Household employment carries within itself no objectionable features, is healthful, pays well.

2. Household employment is performed under conditions which prevent self-direction and personal life.

The Studebaker Six Economy—a Reason for Its Leadership

THE Studebaker SIX is economical to buy because its first cost is comparatively low.

The Studebaker SIX is economical to operate because its splendid quality reduces maintenance costs to a minimum.

In ratio to power it is one of the most economical cars on the market in consumption of gasoline.

It is not only light in weight, but so perfectly balanced that Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

Repair parts may always be obtained at convenient coast branch houses at relatively low prices.

The Studebaker SIX is economical to own because in ratio to first cost, a Studebaker has an unusually high second hand value.

That is why, as official registration figures prove, more Studebakers are sold on the Coast and in the Rocky Mountain States than any other cars costing over $500.

If economy is a consideration with you, follow the example of thousands of other motor-wise Westerners—buy a Studebaker. Let us demonstrate to you the quality and economy of a Studebaker car.

Let us show you its splendid power and easy riding comfort.

Call or telephone today for a Studebaker demonstration.

DOMESTIC HELP PROBLEM Causes of Scarcity Considered

By MAUDE WOLFF.

General Secretary Fresno Y. W. C. A.

The question of domestic service is just an atom on the surface of the women's employment problem at this time. However, to the busy wife and mother in the home needing outside help it is a vital one.

Now, in order to answer this question we must remember there has been for ten years at least an employment problem in domestic service.

Having been a very close student of employment conditions in Fresno for four years I must say that today, in war times with women's labor in a growing demand in almost every line of activity or service, there is not a marked difference in the question of domestic service. Fresno has never had girls seeking positions in homes during the canning or packing season and there are none now. This today is no unusual local condition and it takes no great wisdom to prophesy that when our rains are packed and the girls return to their homes there will again be good, faithful girls ready to take their places as helpers in the homes.

This statement is made at the beginning of this article to reassure local housewives that there is no need of being panic-stricken at this stage in our present industrial evolution; however, there are some essential things which all patriotic women should carefully understand today.

The Young Women's Christian Association exists for the benefit of all women, and numbers in its membership both employers and employees. It is natural, therefore, that this organization should take today, as it has for many years taken, a share in the responsibility of solving women's problems. Any help which the association may endeavor to give on any employment question will be the help which suggests itself to the student of conditions who honestly tries to see both sides of every question, and meets those conditions exactly as they are, and not as an idealist would like them to be.

Were we not engaged in war at this time and if the world's industrial life were not turned topsy-turvy we would have in America today a growing unrest and dissatisfaction in domestic service.

When the Commission on Household Employment, with such national names as Elizabeth Dodge and Ida Tarbell reported to the last national convention of the Y. W. C. A., they outlined in very definite terms the results of their careful investigations. The summary of the answers received from 285 cities, supporting women, selecting five cities from the Pacific coast to New England, 112 in household work, 137 in factories, 15 in department stores and 35 in offices, was as follows:

Boys Who are Learning the Sea Business in a Prairie State

LANDING PARTY

A NOTED author once said, "What children are, neighbors are, states, empires, worlds are." In the City of St. Louis, as well as many other of the larger cities in the United States, this readily may be seen in the accumulation of boys between the ages of 14 and 18 years as members of the American Junior Naval and Marine Scouts.

It is only natural that the youth of the nation follow in the footsteps of the fathers, or at least have a desire to follow their lead. This fact made it possible for the organization of the boy military and naval divisions that have gained such wide proportions as to be considered the "net" organization of the United States naval department.

Walking along the streets of St. Louis today many persons wonder at the spectacle of a boy 14 years old dressed in a regulation sailor's outfit or the uniform of a marine. The person will likely believe it is a boyish whim on the young fellow's part to dress himself like an older brother or friend who has joined the United States navy. But if that person will only look closer he will notice that the uniform is backed up by a manly look and a soldierly carriage, as well as a feeling of intense pride, such as can come only to those who are in a position to be of assistance to the government.

The United States government was not back of the organization at the beginning, but after a few months of work on the part of the boys the highest officer in the navy recognized the value of the organization at this season of intensive recruiting. Thus it will not be necessary for the government and war officials to worry about the "timber" to replenish the ranks in the years to come if the naval scout movement reaches the bounds presently active.

1,200 Members in St. Louis.

Less than three months ago Lieut. McCann, formerly attached to the naval recruiting office at Kansas City, was transferred to St. Louis, where on June 17 he opened a recruiting desk in the naval recruiting office at 719 Olive street and began the first steps toward the organization of the St. Louis Junior Naval and Marine Scouts. Now this city can boast of 1,200 scouts, well disciplined and fairly well trained. The St. Louis organization is second only to New York.

Dating from the last of June, the scouts have been in demand from a recruiting station to assist in the work of building up the national army.

At the recruiting office much interest is shown in the physical and mental condition of the boys who present themselves for membership. When a boy enrolls he does not obligate himself to service in the navy. If, when he is old enough, he cares to join the navy, he is then, because of his training, more capable of being an efficient sailor or officer.

If he does not care to enter the navy he may retire to civilian life a better man for his many months of training, both mental and physical, he has received in the scout service.

The interest aroused among the high officials of the United States navy is shown by the fact that the navy department has detailed officers to the work of recruiting the boys, and then training them in all the things the sailor is taught in the training stations.

When Lieut. McCann opened his recruiting desk in St. Louis, great results were not expected. But soon the boys began to understand just what their duties would be and what the nature of life as a naval scout would mean to them, and then recruits began to stream in.

Aids in Recruiting.

When a number sufficiently large to make drilling possible was reached, Forest Park was used as a drill ground. There more than 1,200 uniformed scouts were massed in one day for drill.

The chief work of the naval scout is the assistance of recruiting, the distributing of all naval propaganda, work on the personal staffs of naval officers, taking census of men in military age for references of the Navy Department and in obtaining recruits for the navy. Naval scouts can always be seen at recruiting offices, and in all patriotic parades.

Next spring the St. Louis Naval Scout recruits will come into their own, as a large barracks will be built at Creve Coeur Lake, where boats of all descriptions will be assembled that proper training in boat handling might be given.

Near the barracks will also be made large drill grounds, where the boys will be drilled in all the regular formations. The United Railways has agreed to provide transportation of the scouts and to furnish the material for the barracks and other buildings.

Lieutenant McCann says the work will be started as soon as all the plans are made and the winter months are over. He says at present St. Louis is only surpassed by New York, where the organization was first begun, in numbers of scouts and perfection of organization.

At the camp at Creve Coeur Lake the boys will receive the major part of the instruction in naval training. In the lake will be whaleboats, sailing and steam launches, as well as all manner of rowing boats. The grounds will be large enough to accommodate five regiments.

Examination Is Careful.

When a boy applies for enlistment in the Naval Scouts he is put through an examination as rigid as that of the regular navy. He is also put through the same routine as is a man entering the regular service. This serves to eliminate undesirable boys and to give those accepted a realization of the importance of the organization. The boy must have the consent of parent or guardian before he can become a member. Once in the scout service he must obey the rules and orders as promptly as any sailor or a battleship.

The Naval Scout organization was born in the brain of Admiral George Dewey, who realized the value of training the youth of America at an age when they could be the most easily impressed.

Although Admiral Dewey has the honor of being the originator of the idea, to Daniel M. Bedell, New York millionaire, goes the credit of actually putting the organization in effect. In the last year Bedell has spent many thousands of dollars interesting the larger cities in the work of instructing the boys. Through his efforts the organization reached such perfection as to attract the attention of all the highest officers in the United States navy.

The national executive offices of the Naval and Marine Scouts are located in New York. Admiral Dewey is on record as the first chief naval scout; Admiral William S. Benson, chief naval scout; I. W. Irving, chief scout executive; Daniel M. Bedell, national treasurer; L. E. Trium, military secretary, and Gen. George Barnett, chief marine scout.

At New York the organization now has more than 5,000 members, who have been working on recruiting for the last six months. Their work has been applauded by the entire navy department. The boys there have had the advantage of training on an old wooden battleship, where they get all the training afforded a regular sailor during his first months at sea.

In all the immense patriotic demonstrations and rallies in New York the naval scouts have been requested to join, because of their perfect drills and numbers. In the office of the navy department there the boys are used as orderlies, doing the work that otherwise a man would have been detailed to do. This kind of work greatly increases the efficiency of the department and makes it possible for much matter to be distributed and orders relayed in a very short time.

Course of Instruction.

The boys in the Junior Naval and Marine Scouts receive instructions in compass, athletics, signaling, swimming, telegraphy, navigation, lifesaving, seamanship, mapmaking, rope splicing, physical drills, personal health, sextant, wireless, first aid, bandaging, knot tying, boat drills, woodwork, field music, wigwagging, camp cooking, military drills, light signaling and camp sanitation.

Their activities are: Games, cycling, hiking, parades, cruising, baseball, inspections, theatricals, basket ball, track teams, sham battles, encampments and entertainments.

In the use of the compass it is said that a ship is sailed as much on a chart as on the ocean. The naval scout is taught just how to regulate the navigation of a ship by the use of a compass and to be able at all times to determine his location.

In athletics the boys are trained by men who have won renown in sport, thus being able to coach the boys as well as any college or university instructor in athletics. The interest in the sport is actuated by contests between the different companies and battalions.

The boys become experts in semaphore signaling, being taught the use of the flags and the alphabet that is used by the army and navy.

The first thing the members of the Naval Scouts become proficient in is swimming. This is of great interest to the youthful sailors, because of their natural liking for the water, besides being very important.

At present there is a call going forth for experienced telegraphers for the United States navy and army. This would not be necessary if the scout organization had been formed a few years ago, as the boys are instructed in the art of telegraphing. There are large classes for radio instruction where the boys are made into efficient wireless operators, as well as first-class electricians.

In navigation, watermanship and mapmaking, come the chief training of the boys in perfecting sailor tactics. The mapmakers are the pioneers of the navy, in that upon their shoulders falls the responsibility of laying out the location of an enemy in order that a landing party may proceed without danger of surprise. With the location exactly duplicated on paper, the commanders of the forces may successfully grasp the situation and handle it accordingly.

In watermanship the boys are taught how to handle and maneuver the boats, and the different formation of the ships when advancing against an enemy fleet. They are taught that the navy has a cavalry the same as the army of old. The cavalry is small cruisers that advance ahead of the battleships to get the exact location of the enemy.

In the instruction of the handling of the boats, the boys are shown every detail as to the sailing, rowing, and caring for the boats under all conditions. They are taught the making and mending of sails in order that they could take care of themselves if lost at sea. They are taught how to tack against a wind, how to successfully board a smaller boat, and how to make a proper landing.

Rope splicing is one of the things taught the boys that is very easily grasped. This is chiefly because all boys are interested in being able to tie sailor knots and to experiment in the handling of a rope. This work is necessary, because before a man can become a sailor he is made to learn the various knots used in the life on the seas, in order that he might work with great rapidity. They are taught how to tie the shank knot, the double canick, the Spanish handcuffs, the snapper on a rope, as well as how to make a rope out of a number of small pieces. They are shown the difference between the thief knot and the sailor's knot.

In first aid practice the boys are taught how to bandage different wounds, to care for the sick, to stop the flow of blood, to prevent blood poisoning, to rescue a drowning man, and to easily carry an injured companion. Much time is spent in this instruction, because of the necessity for self-treatment in time of war. The boys are first taught the rudiments of first aid, and they in turn act as instructors to their fellow companions.

In assisting the work of the Naval and Marine Scouts one can safely believe he is giving great aid to the country in the years to come, for it is on the youth of today that the manhood of tomorrow will be formed.

"If the foundation be of solid rock, and not of sand, the building will be strong and safe." Those words outline the force of the great movement today that has brought more than 60,000 boys of America under direct training for military services. Although they may never serve their country in that manner, the slogan of "In preparedness lies safety and peace" still stands, and with 100,000 healthy young men trained as expert sailors and soldiers, this country cannot help but rank first among those of the world.

Because the United States Naval Department offers co-operation it is proof that the heads of the government are very much in favor of the movement and realize that among its members are to be found the safeguards of this country in the years to come.

The Junior Naval and Marine Scouts may be compared to a large, perfectly organized naval and military school, where the boys are not forced to take up that work, but who do it of their own volition, and therefore take hold more readily and learn more easily.

The organization means a great deal to the fathers and mothers of America, in that they have now solved the problem of meeting the requirements of managing the growing boys. When the son is a member of the Scouts he is kept busy, and then can never find time to pick up bad companions and form habits that will undermine the mind and health. He is given something to do that he likes.

SCOUTS AND INFLUENCE IN NAVY RECRUITING.

"What the services of the members of the American Junior Naval and Marine Scouts have been to St. Louis in its recent campaign of recruiting members for the navy, is hard to define because the things they have done have been so numberless, because the work assigned to them has been so willingly carried on, and, last, their ever readiness to carry out every order."

"In the recruiting campaign, the scouts were to obtain the names of men the right age to join the navy. They made a house-to-house canvass of St. Louis, returning cards with the men's names. From morning to night the boys were kept busy distributing literature for the purpose of interesting St. Louisans in the navy."

"The boys themselves actually brought in recruits by the scores, many of them talking and encouraging their older brothers and friends into joining the St. Louis forces."

"In regard to their work I have received many letters of praise and congratulations from the highest officers in the United States navy."—Lieut. C. H. McCann.

Cinematic Aid for the Police.

The police authorities of Chicago have instituted a system under which each one of the criminals in custody must walk before a motion picture camera that records his characteristic gait and attitudes before he realizes what is happening. All the pictures are then reproduced and shown on a screen to the detectives and policemen in each of the forty-five stations in Chicago.

California Oil

STANDARD STRIKES HIGH GRADE WELL

Oil of 38 Gravity Struck
in McKittrick Field;
Brief Oil Notes

McKITTRICK, Oct. 6.—The Standard Oil company, after drilling wells Nos. 1 and 2 to a depth exceeding 3,000 feet, on the old Fearless lease, in section 16, 20-22, has struck oil of 38 degrees gravity, but for the present has suspended further work. The announcement of the finding of petroleum of such high grade and in generous volume has occasioned general satisfaction in oil circles and particularly among the residents of McKittrick and neighboring localities in the west side fields, where the results of the Standard's operations have been awaited with eagerness since these wells were spudded in many months ago. In some respects the drilling in the two wells was regarded as the most important of the activities of the company in this territory, because of the opening of what promises now to be one of the chief portions of the North McKittrick front, which, two years ago contained only a small number of widely scattered derricks but is now the site of more than one hundred producers.

The 540 acres comprising the old Fearless property was acquired two years ago by the Standard from Albert Spreckels, of San Francisco. The only development of the section before it passed into the control of the Standard was the drilling of two wells ten years ago. One encountered an immense gas pressure, which wrecked the rig and for some days kept up a roar that was heard for miles. Finally the casing collapsed, and work on the well, which had attained a depth of 1,000 feet, was given up. The second well, also drilled to 1,000 feet, met with less gas, but the first, which was never finished. Soon after taking charge of the property the Standard located well No. 1, a comparatively short distance from McKittrick, on the north, and later began to drill No. 2, immediately beyond the city limits, on the east. Both holes were sunk with standard drills until two months ago a rotary was installed at No. 1. Night and day the work continued until oil was found, when the drill in No. 1 was down approximately 3,500 feet and that in No. 2 marked 3,000. The wells have not yet been brought in, but when this is done it is expected that the production will reach goodly proportions. In this event, concerning which there appears to be little doubt from expressions heard on the part of well-informed oil men, it is certain that the Standard will put down many more wells, thus bringing their field of operations close to section 8, 20-22, where a 150 barrel well was brought in a short time since, and where two others are yielding 75 barrels each per day.

The Standard well seven miles northwest of McKittrick, after having flowed oil of 42 gravity over the top of the derrick, was shut down for a time. The oil from this well, drilled to a depth of 4,000 feet, is said to be the lightest ever discovered in the west side, and its appearance aroused considerable excitement in the local fields, many operators, including quite a number from distant points, visiting the scene of the "gusher." While the actual flow is not definitely known, it has been estimated that the rate amounted to probably 500 barrels per day. The well has proved to be a good one in production that the Standard will undoubtedly put down several new holes in the

NEW FIELD OPENS IN CARISSA PLAINS

Extensive Development Is Planned in San Luis Obispo County

McKITTRICK, Oct. 6.—A new oil field in the Carissa Plains region of San Luis Obispo county, beginning in the vicinity of the town of Blinnier, twenty-one miles northwest of McKittrick, is to be actively developed by the Carissa Syndicate and the Associated Oil company. The Carissa Syndicate is headed by C. J. Berry, one of the best known and most successful oil operators in California, and Mr. Charles, a prominent figure in the banking interests of San Francisco, while the Associated Oil company is known the world over as one of the largest connected with the petroleum industry. Some months ago the syndicate secured leases on many thousands of acres in the Carissa Plains country, and is already equipped with much oil well supplies for the work to be done in the wide expanse of territory to be explored. The first step in the direction of the development has been the taking over of the unfinished well formerly operated by the Cedar Spring Oil company, and located on San Luis river, thirty-seven miles from McKittrick. This well had been drilled to a depth of 1900 feet two years ago, when operations were suspended by the Cedar Spring company. It is now proposed by the Carissa Syndicate to continue drilling, the belief being that oil will be struck in paying quantities at 2500 feet or less. This well is situated in section 20, 22-27.

The region generally known as the Carissa (or Carissa) Plains district embraces Carissa and Elkhorn Plains and adjacent southwestern flank of the Temblor Range. Some oil of good quality, testing as high as 28 degrees Baumé gravity, has been struck in color and having very little viscosity was found in wells drilled in several sections of the Carissa Plains field years ago. Two new wells were added to the list in the Kern River field this week, the Virginia Oil company starting one in section 20, 22-28, and the Junction Oil company spudding in the other in section 9, 22-28. In this field considerable work is in progress, this including the deepening of a well by the Kern River Oil fields of California, and the re-drilling of one of the Associated Oil company in section 20, 22-27.

The Associated Oil company, which since its purchase of more than 20,000 acres of land in the Santa Maria field and this year has entered largely into the activities of that area, began this week to put down six new wells, locations for which were made in section 10, 9-24, in the Casamalia field. A well brought in by the Associated Oil company in the Santa Maria district recently has a production of 200 barrels per day. This well is in section 24, 9-25, and the oil was struck at 1640 feet.

Immediate territory, where the company has a large acreage. During this week two new wells were started by the Standard in the Midway area, and three in the Sunset. The former are in section 31, 31-23, and the latter in section 38, 12-21. The company is deepening two wells in the Goshute field, one being in section 22, 13-15, and the other in section 28, 13-15.

Well No. 4, of the Standard, in section 6, 20-22, McKittrick field, has been abandoned.

STANDARD TO DRILL WELLS AT MARICOPA

MARICOPA, Oct. 6.—Two new derricks are being erected by the Standard Oil company on section 7, 11-24 of the Sunset district where the company recently bought in a 220-acre well of 15 gravity oil. The intention for the derrick was located to the lease early in the week and two crews of the bulldozers were placed on the job at once and work is being rushed toward the completion of the derrick that the work of drilling may be started.

The lease is known as the section 7 property and was purchased along with the Sunset lease from the Sunset Monarch company last year. The property was not considered of much account from the showing made by other wells in that district which were drilled six or seven years ago and which were badly damaged by water. However, the Standard drillers succeeded in casing off the water stratum after the second attempt and brought the well in with a fine production of oil which was entirely free from water. The property is located near old Sunset and directly opposite the Maricopa depot.

MIDWAY OILMAN TELLS OF WYOMING ACTIVITY

MARICOPA, Oct. 6.—S. G. Tyrone, well-known oil operator and superintendent, returned this week from the Wyoming oil fields, where he spent the past month investigating conditions there in regard to prospecting and leasing oil land. Mr. Tyrone reports that the two great fields near Casper which are called the Big Muddy and the Salt Creek fields, are rapidly being drilled up and many good wells are being brought in. All of the drilling is being done on the two great domes where oil is found. In the Salt Creek field, nearly all of the wells will average about 150 barrels per day, the oil being of from 35 to 40 degrees gravity. The production is taken from the first Wallerick sand, which is found at a depth of about 1,400 feet. Many wild cat companies are drilling oil from the dome where the first Wallerick sand produces nothing but water. However, another sand is found at a depth of 2,500 feet, and one well, known as the Williams well, came in with a production of 220 barrels of oil after casing off the first Wallerick sand. This well is located about 30 miles from Casper.

In the Big Muddy field wells are getting production at from 2,500 to 2,500 feet and the larger wells are producing from 400 to 600 barrels of oil every twenty-four hours. They are now using the rotary for drilling these wells and are having much success. Wells are also being drilled in California style by under-reaming and carrying the casing down as is done in nearly all the California fields. This method is proving very successful and saves a great deal of work and time over the old method in vogue there before this was introduced.

PUBLIC INVITED TO Y. W. C. A. ANNUAL RALLY

"The annual rally of the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow night," said Miss Maudie Wolff, general secretary of the Fresno Y. W. C. A., "is a call to patriotic service."

The rally will be held tomorrow evening at the Association building at the corner of Van Ness avenue and Merced street. The public are invited, men and women. A program will be submitted by the educational committee.

During the evening talks will be made on the different aspects of the work of the Association by Miss Maudie Wolff, J. S. Glass and Miss Maudie Wolff. The projected Red Cross elementary hygiene and home care of the sick classes will be explained by Miss Maudie Wolff, and registrations taken. The clubs will be presented by Misses Edith L. McCallan, Florence Brooks, Marie Morris and others.

Miss Maudie Wolff will contribute a solo, and a dramatic reading will be given by Laura Schram. Musical numbers will also be given by Misses Collins.

TO HOLD RED CROSS EXAMS. AT Y. W. C. A.

Official examination questions have been received by Miss Maudie Wolff, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., from Miss Florence Marshall, director of the Woman's Bureau of Red Cross Nursing Service. The questions are for surgical dressings classes Nos. 1 and 2, which are taught by Miss Maudie Wolff and Miss Lou M. Adams. All members of the two classes are urged to meet Miss Smith at the Y. W. C. A. on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The examinations will be conducted immediately, and thereafter the elementary hygiene and home care of the sick classes organized. The new classes will be given two lessons per week at the Y. W. C. A. building on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Miss Wolff stated that this course receives recognition at base hospitals and with seventy-two hours of practical nursing in base hospitals is accepted as a qualification for nurses to Red Cross nurses. Miss Smith will register these who intend to take this course on Monday night at the Association building.

Forty girls will be admitted to classes 1A and 2A, elementary hygiene. A class in dietetics will be arranged for later, Miss Wolff announced, and this class will co-operate with the Fresno Normal school. Registrations will be made between the hours of 8 and 10 p. m.

Classes will start promptly at 7:30 on Tuesday, October 9, at the Y. W. C. A. building. All pupils for class 1A must enter that night.

COMES HERE TO SEE CITY ZONING PLAN

To investigate the proposed zoning of Fresno and the work of the city planning commission, C. J. Vandewater, chairman of the city improvement committee of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, spent yesterday in Fresno. He attended the conference during the forenoon between the committee of real estate men and the commission and was the guest at luncheon at the University club of Charles Henry Cheney to meet Miles O. Humphrey, president of the commission.

"In Kearny boulevard," declared Vandewater, "Fresno has one of the finest boulevards in America, which, strangely, seems to be more appreciated outside of Fresno than by the people here."

Vandewater said they had progressed in zoning Long Beach in the point of establishing an industrial district.

"You are working along the right lines here," he said, "I have never seen a more comprehensive city planning scheme worked out anywhere."

boys, and used to write under the cognomen of "Capt. Ralph Bonchill." Dave Porter "does" things thoroughly, but some times with surplus clang and clang in addition to efficiency. In this story he and a chum, Roger, are young civil engineers in Montana. Dave's old jail-bird enemy, Nick Jansiff, and some equally "bad ones" of glasses, abduct Dave's sister and her girl friend. Of course the young engineers rush to the rescue and foil the villains. All this will suit the boy readers who will not miss the deeper social notes which the author might have brought out. For instance, if Dave and Nick had been changed in their attitudes, and in all their up-bringing, might not Nick and outlaws of this tale, have been the hero?

There are thirteen volumes of these Dave Porter stories and they are read everywhere. (Gathrop, Lee & Shepard; $1.25 net per volume.)

Brief Notes.

A little story for these hard days in southern winter, by Grace S. Richmond is "The Whistling Mother." Here is a college boy getting ready to start for the war, and here is a mother who arms his whole spirit with that virtue of which families and nations rise to the very heights. This little book will be a blessing to thousands on thousands. Doubleday Page and company publisher for fifty cents.

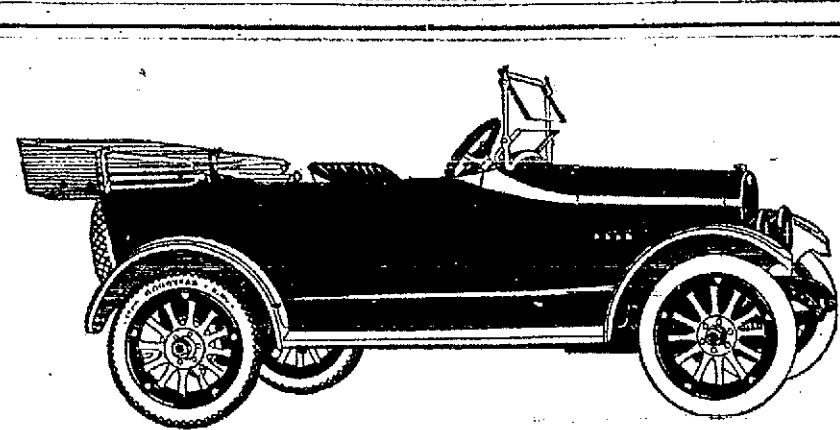

Allen Undergraff's new novel "Escaped Youth" has the light touch, and is cheerful reading, though some of it borders the farcical—it comes from Harpers. (1.25 net.)

People who know and love the writers of Mark Twain will look at "Jap Hitter" said to have been dictated on the Oja board to Mrs. Hutter and Miss Hays. They will find it hard to believe that this collection of letters is really "our Mark's." There is a whole bunch of "The Western World" dictated after death sort of novel and they sell for 10c. (Hill Kennedy; $1.50 net.)

Henrie Wade has written a tale in now a young man and maiden went to study philosophy at Freiburg and learned to love each other (as if this could not have happened elsewhere, or otherwise) Lane publishes this novel.

"Someone and Somebody" is a first novel about a suddenly-rich young fellow and a nice girl. Commemorative and somewhat weak work even for a first novel. (Hobbs & Merrill; $1.25 net.)

Cyrus Brady, who is nothing if not sensational makes one of his rapid thrillers one of the baby tales in which Joshua took Jericho. It does not take the place of the dramatic tale, but it is a surprise it will find readers. Brady puts enough research and study into the collection of his materials for such novels as this. THE FRANKLIN CAR

Three Times As Many People Are Now
Buying Franklin Cars

"AMERICANS," said a foreign critic, "know the price of everything, and the value of nothing."

That was before our entry into the war. Today it is a different story.

The past few months have developed a remarkable understanding of the National duty to curb needless waste and extravagance.

A typical illustration is the change in standards of judging and buying a motor car.

Only a short time back a car had to be everything but practical to attract the average motorist.

He wasn't interested in upkeep because his eye was on puerile ornamentation.

Gasoline didn't worry him because he was comparing wheel-buses.

The economy was not in his mind because he was judging freedom mixtures for an unnecessary water-cooling system.

And getting rid of his old car at a fire-sale price for a new model of another make he figured was part of the game.

Today economy—both in gasoline and tires—is being forced on the attention of the motorist. By rising costs, by government officials, by newspapers and magazines the problem is before the motorist daily.

What is he to do?

He is looking for a way out—some way to cut his cost in half and maintain his mileage.

He must get down to fact and figures. Know what the car he intends buying will actually do on a gallon of gasoline and a set of tires. Take into consideration the depreciation each year. And turn his back on pleasing phrases and tempting "claims."

There's less mystery than one thinks about this economy problem. A car has thrift or it hasn't. Something "in between" is like the proverbial "something just as good."

An unfailing gauge of the worth of any fine car today is the way it is selling today.

Now what are the sales facts about the Franklin?

The present and next building schedule of Franklin Cars will not catch up with orders on hand. Franklin Cars are being built at a rate of three times as many as a year ago and the public demand still continues to exceed production.

The Franklin Car was bound to become more popular each year, even in normal times. The war, forcing utility and economy before everything else, quickened this movement.

Today, as for fifteen years, the Franklin Car stands as the most practical, efficient and economical fine car in America.

Just consider the significance of the National Efficiency Test of 175 Franklin Cars on July 15th, 1917. Over all sorts of roads, in weather partly fair and partly rainy, these cars recorded at 175 different points in the United States the remarkable average of 42.5 miles to the single gallon of gasoline.

This record shows what the Franklin does under standard efficiency test rules. The practical motorist might ask himself what any other make of car can do along the same lines. Such a comparative test offers a standard which any operator can modify in the same respect against one car and another.

High gasoline mileage means economy all along the line. It takes no expert to know that if a car is overburdened with heavy weight and undergoing constant wear and tear the gasoline tank will tell it by low mileage.

Take tires. For five years Franklin owners have been reporting their individual tire mileage. The average for this five year period is 19,203 miles.

Now compare the annual depreciation of the average fine car with the Franklin. Look over the daily used-car advertisements and visit the places selling used-cars. It's a rare case when you find the Franklin. If you do—why is it valued so high?

There is something here for every motorist to think about—and these are days when a motorist has to think if he wants to ride.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Mrs. Fiske's New Play.

Arrangements have been completed between Klaw and Erlanger and George C. Tyler and Arthur Hopkins whereby Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske is to appear next month in a comedy by Philip Moeller, based on certain episodes in the life of George Sand, the famous French novelist who, as everyone knows, wrote under a male nom de plume.

The comedy will introduce George Sand at the beginning of her great love affair with Alfred de Musset the poet, other historic artistic characters will include Heinrich Heine, Chopin and Liszt.

Mr. Moeller is best known as a director of the Washington Square players and the author of a number of clever one-act plays presented by that group, including "Editha's Husband," "The Hunchback of Arden" and "Sisters of Susanna." His new comedy is as yet unnamed.

Mrs. Fiske, in a recent letter to Mr. Tyler, wrote: "This part will afford me the greatest acting opportunity of my career."

Mrs. Dane's Defense.

Henry Arthur Jones' celebrated stage success, "Mrs. Dane's Defense," has been selected as Pauline Frederick's next Paramount picture following the adaptation of David Graham Phillips' "The Hunchback of Arden," which she completed several weeks ago. Hugh Ford, who directed Miss Frederick's first motion picture appearance and has supervised a number of her other Paramount pictures, will be in charge of the production. "Mrs. Dane's Defense" has proven to be one of Henry Arthur Jones' greatest successes and it was in this play that Margaret Anglin achieved fame.

If there is one word today that means more to Sophie Tucker than "Jazz" it is "Smoke." Heart and soul she has taken up the collection of a smoke fund for the boys in France. In every town she goes and she is just beginning a return tour of the Orpheum Circuit, she is touring from soap boxes, cat tails or anywhere she can get a footing, and collecting money for the fund. That's her way of doing "her bit." If there is a fund in any town she will co-operate with those who started it, if there isn't a fund, she will start one and leave a permanent organization behind when she travels on.

Herbert Rawlinson made his first trip to the exposition grounds in San Diego this week when Director Elmer Clifton took the company south to film scenes for a Bluebird flyer in which Rawlinson will be featured. Rawlinson met many men he knows among the trouper and officers quartered at San Diego for the exposition grounds are now one vast training camp, although they still preserve their beauty and many of the lovely buildings. Herbert proved a most welcome visitor.

Walter De Leon and Mary Davies, nephews vaudevilleans, have discovered that the title of their act, "Behind The Front," is also being used by another act. Though considered a valuable asset, it is understood that De Leon and Davies are willing to forego their rights to it if the other team can prove priority. The vaudeville feel sure they were the first to introduce the disputed title.

Dan T. Casey who made his debut in Orpheum vaudeville at San Francisco has a new act which will take over the Orpheum Circuit this season entitled, "The Traveler." The author of it, "Bugs" Barr who shines stage in the humor column of a New York newspaper.

Webster Campbell, the good looking and clever juvenile lead with the Vitagraph's eastern forces, first came prominently to the front in the "Beauty" pictures which were made at the American company at Santa Barbara. Later Webster acted with the western Vitagraph and the Lucky company.

Although Eva Taylor and Lawrence Granton, appearing in Granton's latest feature, "The Boat," they have already selected their vehicles for next season. It is entitled "The Red Cross Ball," and is a high class farce in which Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Granton will have the assistance of three other people. As in the case of all the vehicles played by Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Granton is the author.

Evelyn Nesbit who has been starring in motion pictures for some time will forsake the camera to return to vaudeville soon. Miss Nesbit will appear in an entirely new act with songs written especially for her by Charles McCarron. It was Mr. McCarron who wrote the music and lyrics of Lucille Cavanagh's present act which she recently introduced to New York with such great success.

The Marmaduke Sisters, who were introduced in vaudeville patterns on the Orpheum Circuit last season, are the featured members of a new vaudeville act that has just been produced under the name of The Production Company. The production is said to be strikingly original and extremely beautiful.

HORRORS! GIRLS, DOUGLAS IS A REGULAR HIGHBROW

So you see the only original feature isn't the reusé of the other act. "My words are perfect," said Fairbanks explained. "I follow the line of least resistance. I never try to do what I can't do. For instance I can't be a villain. You see, I'm a bun. The best death scenes are enacted by live men. I suppose people like me because I'm full of animal spirits and what you call—here his eyes twinkled—twinkled—'love of life'."

But the highbrow would not stay put. "Life," Mr. Fairbanks continued, "is all vibrations. I have gone through it all trying to decide whether I am alive, whether all this energy is real. It all goes back to the relation of time and space, the nebular hypothesis. You can't really put your finger on anything and say it's so. I challenge you!"

"You are a most attractive human," I answered.

"That's only your angle," was my reward.

"But suppose I support my evidence with the testimony of feminine millions," I insisted.

"Taking a Chance."

"That's only their angle." "No," he continued in a minor key. "It's all vibrations and theory."

"Then how can you be so fearless in a world of vibrations, heat by theories?"

"Gone was the philosophic calm. 'People think I am fearless. But I'm not. I've got just as much fear as the next fellow, but I take a chance. As Bernard Shaw says, 'Fear is the universal passion.' But my score happens to be 52 per cent pride and 48 per cent fear." There was no need to mention the 100 per cent smile. It was very much in evidence.

Mr. Fairbanks assured me that Douglas, Jr., however, is utterly free from the universal passion.

"What do you like best about yourself?" I asked for no reason whatever.

"Myself!"

And what do you suppose he likes best about himself? "Mrs. Fairbanks, I also learned before I took leave why he prefers the movies. In his own words, the reason's 'Beaucoup d'Arcen' which translated into English means the reason for almost everything."

HOW ONE LAUGH CAN BE HEARD THE WORLD OVER

Mack Sennett

The business of making motion pictures is, in effect, the retelling of imagination. This is an aspect that always fascinates me.

We often hear it said that we live in an age of imagination. Yet one in which it occurs to us that the age in which we live is in fact the most picturesque and romantic of all ages. When you come to think of it, modern industry is dramatic to the very core.

Albert K. Chesterton, the famous English essayist, says that the making of a letter is a drama in itself. I never turn on an electric light at my room at the club that it does not occur to me that somewhere on the other end of that electric wire is a mountain torrent that comes tumbling over mountain cascades to supply the energy that lights my room. I always feel as though I were turning on a resplendent waterfall when I touch that little electric button.

In some such way, the making of motion pictures is a task a whole lot more picturesque and interesting than were most of the occupations of the past that we think of as having been romantic.

It often comes to me with a queer feeling as we sit around the studio serotating blood over the screen of a comedy. At such times an idea strikes you and the echo of that idea will presently be heard at the ends of the earth. Something makes one of us think of a "man" and that man will be laughed at as far as ships can sail.

We start a little joke in front of a camera and it goes and keeps on going. Somewhere out on the Asiatic station, a ship's boat will pull up to the side of a ferry boat and an orderly will go up the gangway with a faint under his arm, the echo of our little joke will be heard across the white decks of a steel-clad ship of war to make laughs for lonely sailors.

Somewhere back of the trenches, I imagine, that the soldiers of the Allies will come back from their tour of danger in the flaming hell of No Man's Land, shaken and exhausted, and they will laugh at our little jokes in one of the army theaters. And it will be the laugh for some of them. I imagine that some of the laughs over the gags we put on the screen find an answer in the white of the German shells that sing through the night.

Somewhere, out on the prairies, a rancher is plodding into town, with a calf

STORY OF MUSIC FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

several shorter pieces, just as he had the knot in the wood. These he bound together, and when he blew into them found that he had captured the spirit of the wind in the trees. This saved his head.

From the pictures and tablets taken from the ruined cities of Egypt we learn that music and musical instruments were an important part of the home and religious life of those early people.

The Bible tells us that the ancient Hebrews had many kinds of instruments to play upon also trained song for the temple services.

The Greeks and Romans have many stories about how music came first to them, but the most charming, as they come from the Greeks, claiming the honor of receiving musical instruments from the gods themselves.

One folk says that Minerva discovered that by stretching strings across a tortoise shell a musical tone could be obtained. Using this as a pattern, an instrument was fashioned called the lyre. Greek musicians are usually pictured holding this strange instrument, which has been so developed that today we have our beautiful concert harp.

Orpheus, when he played upon his golden stringed lyre, brought forth such wonderful music that the birds, flowers, rocks, animals, mountains all moved his will. Amphion, god of Thebes also possessed music which could charm his city, he played upon his lyre and the rocks and stones danced into their places in the wall.

Very many in number are these interesting tales of how music came to the world, forever playing the harp in the clouds of the strains of the sea and their hushing tones, and how they lost their wings because they thought that they could sing as sweetly as the gods; of how Ariadne when he was about to be killed by the pirates on the ship, played upon his lyre and charmed the huge fish, so that the fish took him home to Corinth. Pan, the god of a good who loved the nymph Syrinx devotedly, one day in fun chased her until she became very frightened, and called upon her father, the river-god for help. Then when Pan was just about to seize her, in she was transformed into a bundle of reeds by the river side. Pan was heart-broken, but as he watched the reeds swaying back and forth in the breeze he heard a low, mournful sound coming from them. He cut a handful of the reeds down, and very tenderly and carefully polished and shaped them into long slim tubes. These he cut into different lengths, and arranged them in a little row according to size and tied them together with a bit of skin. He put this little instrument to his lips and blew, and behold, the voice of his beloved Syrinx answered him. He is said to have presented to the

for the butcher in the wagon. Before he begins the long ride back he will, perhaps, take in the movies and a little "rhaps" from too much service, he will see that old 222.

We hatch out a little joke and it goes to funny little places across the world where days sit rattling on their heels, in stuffy little places in the tenements where the children find there is still something to laugh at in the world; to the picture palaces in the glare of Broadway lights; to buds across the sea; to prisons where men in whose souls there is no longer any laughter somehow manage to laugh.

All these people have dreamed their own dreams; they have imagined things that they have forgotten how. We dream their dreams for them. We imagine for them. This is what makes our work worth while.

Jackie Saunders

Greeks what is known in song and story as the Pipes of Pan.

From Pipes of Pan

Some of our modern instruments may be the outcome of that little fairy tale. The little flue, oboe and clarinet, found in the band and orchestra are just like the pipes of Pan, only of course so much more improved. Also, the next time you go to church and see the large row of gold pipes in front of the pipe-organ, just stop and think of the hand-full of whistles that Pan made out of what was left of his beloved Syrinx, and that they are played upon something of the same principle—air being blown into one end of the pipe will make a tone deep as the pipe is long, the shorter the pipe the higher the tone is in pitch.

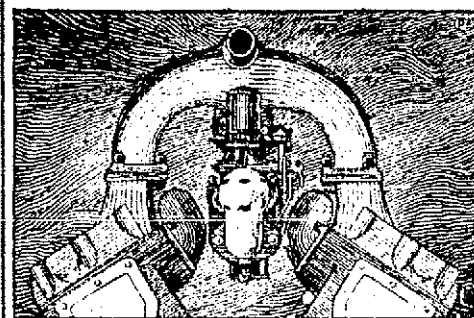

Many plays were written by the Greeks and performed in huge outdoor theaters called amphitheatres. These plays or dramas were not spoken but sung or chanted, accompanied by the lyre or pipe. The man who wrote the drama was always the composer of the music. The Greek system of music was a very different and elaborate one and took years for one to master it.

Greek music and all early music consisted of melody only—single tones in succession. It was left for later nations or schools of music to bring about the art of harmony—tones sounded together.

Musical was supposed to have been of divine origin and has always been a very important part of all religious services. Our next chapter will be about the early church music and its influence.

Will Cressy and Blanche Dwyne, known Orpheumites, arrived in New York last week from Los Angeles in their automobile after having covered, with peregrinations, more than 4500 miles. This is the sixth time across the continent for these perennial vaudevilleans. In all they figure they have covered by automobile 35,000 miles in fifteen countries. Mr. Cressy is coming to begin another tour of the Orpheum Circuit soon in his sketch, "The Wyoming Whoop." The name is taken from a newspaper and not from a cough.

"The Bible of the Nile," a pretentious musical offering with a large company which Louis Simon produced towards the end of last season has now been played in rehearsal again and he has hopes that he will visit the West with the Orpheum Circuit this season. During the summer he has been playing around New York in a farcical sketch that was less pretentious.

Actual Service Gives Leadership To Firestone SUPER CORD TIRES

THE leadership of the Firestone Super Cord has been won solely on construction producing unequalled strength, durability and flexible action. The body is built of walls of stout cord. Each cord imbedded in pure gum, no two cords ever touching to cause friction. The cushion (which is under tread to absorb shocks) is a thick layer of pure gum. The tread is tough and thick. The beads which hold the tire to the rim are specially reinforced. The side wall is also reinforced, giving extra strength against rim-cut, and raising bending point safely high. Users of Firestone Cord Tires are getting the highest average mileage enjoyed by car owners.

That motorists find extra values in Firestone Tires is proved by the fact that our sales increased 72 per cent this year up to Sept. 1st. Our total business this year will exceed $60,000,000.

BOYS APPRECIATE Y. M. C. A. AT CAMP

Army Work of Association Heartily Received by Draft Army Men

That the kindly services of the Army Y. M. C. A. are appreciated by the men of the new national army at Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash., is the word received from there by L. T. Lewis, acting general secretary.

"Letters received in this city from the boys, and from men in the service, in the manner in which the buildings of the Army Y. M. C. A. are being used by the men," said Mr. Lewis. "I am informed that there are hundreds of men at the writing desks every night sending letters to their folks at home—letters written on stationery furnished by the Y. M. C. A. At other tables are hundreds of men playing checkers and making themselves at home as guests of the association."

"The Army Y. M. C. A. anticipated the demand and it has not been disappointed," Mr. Lewis continued. "But so crowded have been the writing tables that men are compelled sometimes to wait their turns. It seems possible that the national war work council, which supervises this work will be compelled to erect additional buildings for the thousands who wish to make use of the association's privileges."

"Virtually all the letters received from the camp make special mention of the high standard of the men forming the new national army. Men who commanded millions are making comrades of those who struggled along on a meager salary. The excitement is the melting pot. Once the men are in the uniform they assume a military aspect and bearing—the rich and poor are equal."

"One of the greatest sights, it is said, is to see the boys arrive at the camp in all manner of ways, some with patent leather shoes and high-top coats, others in heavy boots and overalls. Then comes the change into khaki, a transformation. After a day's work the boys drift into the Y. M. C. A. building. Some are plainly homesick and seek companionship, others rush to the writing tables and dash off hurried notes to the folks at home. Others who are carefree and full of life, don the boxing gloves and still others engage in reading."

"Large French classes are already formed. Physical instructors are leading hundreds of men toward clean, wholesome living. Religious workers are finding those men who seek religious inspiration. In short the Y. M. C. A. is a tangible part of the American army."

NAMING OF NURSE STOPS EPIDEMIC

HANFORD, Oct. 6.—As the result of the appointment of a nurse by the grammar school trustees, a serious outbreak of measles and contagious skin disease has probably been averted. The nurse, who entered upon her duties when school opened last Monday found upon investigation that a child who was attending school was suffering from measles, the parents being unaware of the fact. The second child was afflicted with skin disease, the parents in this case also being ignorant of the fact. The school trustees acted immediately. The school trustees first appointed a nurse last year, and so pleased were they with the results that they decided to continue the appointment.

GRANT SIX

How Do We Do It?

EVER since the GRANT SIX appeared as the first six to sell for less than $1000, people have wondered how so good a car could be sold at so low a price. Today they wonder how the GRANT SIX price is maintained while all other popular priced sixes have been compelled to advance to prices $60 to $110 higher than the GRANT.

So here's the answer: GRANT SIX is so manifestly the best looking and best built car under $1000 that rapidly increasing sales have allowed the factory to offset increasing costs.

Beyond any question the GRANT SIX is today far outselling any other six under $1000. It is the biggest bargain in the motor car field. Five minutes' comparison of GRANT SIX features with those of any or all other cars up to $1100 or $1200 will convince you of this.

The GRANT SIX overhead valve engine developing 36 h. p. at 2400 R. P. M., its beautiful body lines and finish, its size and roominess, its splendid electrical equipment, its remarkable economy (20 miles to a gallon of gasoline), make the GRANT SIX a really fine car at the lowest price for which any six in the world is sold.

JOY RULES CHICAGO: THOUSANDS IN LINE FOR SECOND GAME. CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—By 10 o'clock tonight the line of fans who wished to secure seats in the bleachers for the game tomorrow was so long that small squads of police at the park were deemed inadequate by Chief Schmeider and he sent twenty-five mounted reserve officers to assist in keeping order.

The scenes of last night were repeated. All came prepared for the long vigil and made themselves comfortable for the night. Some wrapped themselves in blankets and others chatted the night away, sitting on boxes and benches.

Downtown Chicago tonight entertained one of the gayest crowds in its history. Theaters and cafes were unable to care for the multitudes and many of the players in the initial game of the season were in the line.

Little betting was reported. No limitation has been given as to where the opposing pitchers will be compared.

Among those who claim an intimacy with the Giants' manager it is said Schupp will pitch the Sunday game with "Bertie" as the most probable pitcher. Charles Herzog, the Giants' captain, shared this belief.

Manager Rowland of the White Sox is equally reticent as to his choice. Either Williams or Russell are regarded as the most likely selections.

At the regular meeting of the supervisors of the Playground department in the superintendent's office yesterday morning, numerous rules, regulations and preparations for the next quarter's work were discussed. In particular, emphasis was laid on the importance of regularity in the work.

It was planned to start the Sunday school leagues in boys' and men's volleyball, girls' and women's volleyball, men's and women's basketball, and men's and women's tennis.

The primary playground ball league will most likely start on October 18. The intermediate playground ball leagues will start during the next week and the football league of the intermediate schools a week later.

The playground football schedules will start next to the last week in October. This year the playground department will endeavor to have a schedule for the 110-pound football teams and also one for the 125-pound leagues.

Four high school football teams are expected to participate in the Holmes playground, which in addition to the other activities, crowds this field to its utmost to accommodate all wishing use of its facilities.

Santa Barbara Elks Lodge Ball Champions. MONTEREY, Cal., Oct. 6.—The Santa Barbara Elks lodge team today won the Elks state championship by defeating Alameda, 18 to 5. Each team had previously won the championship in a series of games for its section of the state.

McCarthy Defeats Rivers. REJO, Nev., Oct. 6.—Johnny McCarthy of San Francisco was given the decision in the fight between him and Rivers. The fight was a close one, but McCarthy showed much of his old-time form.

ATHLETICS WILL BE IMPORTANT FEATURE IN ARMY RECREATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—That athletics are to form an important part of the army features which are being provided at the veterans' encampments and cantonments by the Knights of Columbus is the intention of the Knights of Columbus Committee on War Activities, to which has been entrusted the work of erecting buildings and which with government authorization, will do a large share of the work of providing for the social, religious and recreational wants of Uncle Sam's fighting men.

From a list of nearly 2000 applicants interested in the work of the committee, and in addition to these, a large number of assistants will be required. In making these appointments the committee's ability to encourage and promote athletics of all kinds has been taken into consideration.

Not only are college men and several of them have distinguished themselves in various branches of a sport.

Clarence Mannon, who is in charge of the Knights of Columbus building at Gettysburg, Pa., in post-graduate student at the Catholic University of America, and was formerly a basketball and basketball star at St. Mary's College, Kentucky, Hugh Daly, a Notre Dame University basketball star, and James S. Moore, a basketball star at St. Ignace University, have both been appointed to secretariats.

Located at Camp Meade, Md., the Knights of Columbus building is being reserved for one of the southern camps now in course of construction.

W. R. Walsh, who has taken charge of the Knights of Columbus work as secretary at Camp Meade, Md., is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, and is a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Walsh is a post graduate student at the Catholic University of America. His assistant, John J. Walsh, is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, and is a member of the Knights of Columbus.

MOTION PICTURES AS COACH FOR SOLDIERS IN BOXING LESSONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—With the assistance of crack college athletes from all parts of the United States to national army and national guard camps, the work of promoting recreational athletics among the soldiers is well under way.

The commission on training camp activities, of which Raymond R. Fadden, chairman, has organized the coaches and placed one on the staff of the commanding officer of each big military camp in the country.

The commission plans to develop a comprehensive organization of each of the camps, with a view to encouraging the largest possible number of soldiers to participate regularly in some form of athletic activity during leisure time.

Boxing is especially adapted to camp life and conditions, and the commission is calling for the participation of large numbers of men in semi-military events will be encouraged in addition to the more common competitive games.

Instruction in boxing will be given at each of the camps, not only as a form of sport and recreation but because of its relation to modern bayonet fighting. This was impressed upon officers at Fort Myer, Washington, and other camps by Major Herman Koehler, West Point physical instructor, who said that the "thrust" blow was similar to the bayonet thrust, and that the full force of the body was used in the delivery of the blow.

Boxing is being taught to the soldiers in a way that will make it a part of their daily life. The instruction is being given in a way that will make it a part of their daily life.

Answers to Picture Fans

RUTH—George Walsh is 27. Tom Forman tells neither his age nor whether he is married. He takes an important part in the Fox feature, "The Honor System," recently released.

MARY V.—Mollie King has a sister, Nellie, and a brother, Charles. Do not know any Allyn King. Mollie is to be seen with Crichton Hale in a new serial called "The Seven Pearls."

I. M. P.—Ruth Roland and Crichton Hale get mail in care of Pathe, 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York.

MARY PICKFORD.—William S. Hart, Blanche Sweet and Kathryn Williams, Lasky Studio, Hollywood, Cal. Marguerite Clark, Famous Players, 485 Fifth avenue, New York. Mary Miles Minter, American Film Company, Santa Barbara, Cal. Theda Bara, Fox Studio, Hollywood, Cal.

NO. 1.—If I knew any other name for George Fisher I'd tell you. I never keep any secrets like that to myself about the movie players. I don't believe he has a wife, though. Periodic winkle was released June 11. Come again, Al.

PRUNES.—Address Douglas Fairbanks in care of the Artcraft Studio, Hollywood, Cal. He is 34, but cannot say if he sends pictures of himself to his admirers. Marguerite Clark's latest picture is "The Amazon." Mary Pickford is 34 and her hair is golden.

D. T. S.—Edward Earle played with Frances Nelson in "The Beautiful Lie." Address him in care of Metro, 1478 Broadway, New York.

KATHRYN K.—Harold Lockwood had to register for the draft, but his number was not in the first call. Francis X. Bushman is still on the screen, but his children have never been either on the stage or in pictures. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are now working in a special seven-reel production which will soon be released.

VIRGIL.—Douglas Fairbanks receives his mail at the Lasky studio, in Hollywood, Cal.

ALFRED R.—E. A. Cash, 202 West Union street, Marion, Ill., has kindly offered to send you a list of 300 names of movie players upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY A. H. GIEBLER.

THE movies are at it again. The magic strips of celluloid that have wrought so many changes in our daily lives and habits are revolutionizing our manners.

The movies are making a race of Beau Brummels of us in the matter of dress, and turning thousands of people heretofore careless in their deportment into first-class imitations of the late Lord Chesterfield.

Nowadays no man can be derailed in the matter of manners. No matter whether he has ever had the opportunity of mingling with the socially elect or not, he cannot bring that fact forward as an excuse for not knowing what's what in etiquette, because it's only a step to the movie show, and if he will but go there and take a leaf from the book of that glass of fashion and mold of form, the movie star, he will be assured of a knowledge of the latest and most correct thing in social usage.

The youth of today can find no logical excuse for not knowing what to wear and when to wear it. He can offer no apologies to his best girl for not knowing whether he must follow or precede her when the usher at the theater is conducting them to the wrong seats.

He can offer no valid reason for being ignorant of how to conduct himself at a reception, a dinner party, a wedding or a funeral; because if he is normal he goes to the movies and, being normal and going to the movies, he cannot fail to observe the impeccable manners in which some of our best actors follow the rules of propriety and deportment.

Do you realize what a great advantage the movies have given the present generation over the former one in this respect?

How many of the old boys who read this will remember the days when they first "bulted" into society, and with what delight they would have welcomed such a school in manners as the movies give the young man of today?

Did you ever buy one of those little books on etiquette that promised to teach you how to behave in good society?

Of course, you have. We all have. And did you ever see such a whitened sepulcher, such a hypocrite as was that book? Why, to read the outside cover and the first inside page you thought that all you needed was to study it and you would forthwith be the most sought-after chap in town.

It didn't look reasonable to suppose that you could be anything but the beau of every ball when you had digested the information compiled in the little book, did it? But was there ever a sacred or volume that promised so much and produced so little?

You can get more real information by watching Harold Lockwood in one five real feature than the whole book contained.

Of what use was the advice not to tuck hatpin under chin? Or that toothpicks were in bad form? We knew that already.

What we wanted to know was how to keep our Adam's apple from bobbing up and down as we swallowed our food, and how to eat an ear of corn without "making a noise like a dredge."

Do you remember what it said under the heading of "How to conduct oneself at a reception?" That one should enter the drawing room with a pleasant smile on one's face—not a broad smile, but just a suggestion, the kind of smile that usually turns out to be what is known as a sickly grin when produced by an amateur.

This was to please the hostess and make her feel that you were very glad to be there.

Would any sane human being try that kind of a stunt nowadays, when the movie star is here as a safe and sure guidepost?

"Oh, yes, the little book told one how to enter the drawing room, but it did not tell one what to do after one got there—what one was to do with one's hands and one's feet, and how one was to move around in the room without knocking the whatnot over, or keep from brushing the hand-painted couch shell from the center table with one's coat tails, or how to keep one's ears from rattling the ebony in redness."

What a blessing it would have been if one had the opportunity of going to the movies and drinking in a good society drama with Marc Mac Dermott in the leading part. One would have been O. K. with the accent on both letters if "he" could have done that!

There was also a chapter on introductions, and information to the effect that the introduced must bend over the hand of the introduced and murmur some pleasant phrase such as: "So charmed to meet you, Miss Jones," or "I have long awaited this pleasure."

Imagine a young bull of a bushful boy bending over anything without making a gawk of himself. And murmur? Why, the softest voices he could summon hoarse like an auctioneer's, and the pleasant phrase he delivered sounded like: "Pleased to meetcha!"

Oh, but that book was a faltering guide! But there were no movies, and it was the best instructor we had.

The advice about raising the hat to a lady on the street, and not drinking coffee out of our saucer was good, and even necessary in some instances, but what we wanted was something that would tell us how to go to places and act like we had been there before and was used to doing—whatever it was.

The youth of today, who has the movie star as a guide and mentor in these important matters, is blessed indeed!

Of course, the older generation might have copied from some of the socially correct chaps. There was always one or two in every crowd, but we were always so consumed with hatred for the polished young devils that we would have died before we would have taken lessons from them.

If there had been a Francis X. Bushman, a George Walsh or a Jack Pickford in those days, and we could have gone to the theater and observed these living models of good form in action, we would gladly have done so.

But age that polished young ass that used to always lead the grand march at the semi-annual volunteer firemen's ball with Mabel Smith or some other one of the pretty girls in town? Never!

Remember how we used to get out under the steps of the opera house every time a ball was given, and talk that very thing over with Frank and Jonacy, and Steve and Smithy?

"Ain't like that, eh?" we told each other while we smoked our cigarettes and gave our red ears a chance to cool off. "Be a sissy like him!" Well, we guessed not.

"Whatever a girl can see in a fellow like that, bowing and scraping like a dancing master!" and "If that's what the girls like, let 'em have it." We didn't care, not us! Why we'd quit going with the girls if we had to make regular popinjays of ourselves like he did.

And then we'd get a mental vision of the popinjay bending over the pleased and fluttering form of our own heart's desire as he asked her for a dance and so plunging back to resume our agonizing pleasure and the work of destruction to flounces and tender feet.

Wouldn't we just have put Mr. Popinjay out of business and beat him at his own game if we could have sat through two or three movie plays written around week-end parties, balls and receptions about a week before the ball?

It was usually the day after the ball that we went down to the drug store and pretended to get a book that told how many rolls of wall paper it took to cover a room 18x24, or how much lumber could be sawed out of a given number of logs "so" big, and found the book quite by accident and took it along just to see what the fool thing had to say; and after we found out what poor stuff it was we threw it away and didn't buy another until the next ball came around.

A Safe and Sure Guide.

The movies are in most instances a safe and sure guide to correct social form. They have to be.

If a star made even the smallest mistake, the studio employing him would be flooded with letters of protest from people all over the country.

Not long ago an actor wore a four-in-hand tie with a full dress suit, and started a regular beehive of buzzing from the sticklers for correctness. Another player almost lost his job because he twiddled his thumbs in the presence of (movie) royalty in a palace scene.

It was not always thus, however. There was a time when any kind of coat with tails was considered good enough for any kind of evening reception.

The feminine stars are more to be trusted in the matter of form than the male players, but even they fall by the wayside now and then, but not so much in social usage as in incongruities.

A well-known player got lost in a swamp in a thriller a few months ago. She waded around in the mud all night, then allowed herself to be rescued in white satin slippers that had never a spot on them.

Some of the studios have a "style" critic, whose duty it is to see that no mistakes or violation of the code of etiquette creep into the scenes, and even if an error does happen now and then, the pictures may be taken as a pretty safe guide, and the young man who wants to shine socially can learn much that will be valuable to him from a careful study of at least two or three dozen of the better known stars.

He can learn what to wear and when to wear it; how to act at balls, receptions, weekend parties, in a restaurant, how to tip a waiter in an apparently unobtrusive way and yet get the information to the young lady that he has dined with that he is a good spender and will, therefore, be a good provider.

In fact, the movies teach with living models what the little book on etiquette tried to teach in stilted words.

Probably there is no more inefficient and ineffective thing in the world than a genuine busybody.

FRESNANS ARE BACK FROM PRODUCTS MEETING

Report on Wheat Pledge of 39,000 Acres in County

Looks to People's Will to Accomplish Harvest

"Where there is a will there is a way," said Chris Jorgensen, chairman of the Fresno county board of supervisors yesterday in speaking of this county's problem for planting and harvesting next year's products.

"We should have one mind—to assist the Government as much as possible," he said as he reviewed briefly the survey required by Federal Food Commissioner

Ralph P. Merrill at the meeting held in San Francisco, Friday.

Upon the invitation of the food commissioner for California, Mr. Jorgensen, Senator W. P. Chandler and Charles L. Fowler were present at the meeting.

After securing data from Farm Adviser Leroy B. Smith, Mr. Jorgensen was able to report to the commissioner that Fresno county will increase her wheat acreage to 39,000 next year. With 1,337 acres harvested this year, 35,000 acres have been planted for the coming season. Mr. Jorgensen also reported the 14,000 acres of fruit that Fresno county is harvesting this year. He said it is his opinion there would be no appreciable difficulty in getting the work done next year.

"I told the commissioner that I had had no trouble in getting my crops harvested," said Jorgensen, "and Mr. Chandler who was the only other Fresno county speaker. I heard before leaving, said that he had had no much trouble. The fine weather helped out the harvest very much."

"Yes, I think we will get the next year's crops harvested all right," continued Mr. Jorgensen speaking from his experience and his observation. He spoke with optimism of the participation with which the planting is being promised and through which he anticipates the crops will also be harvested.

It is the only way for every one of us of one mind. It is sure to win," he concluded.

To Overlook No One
In the big drive in Fresno county, no one will be overlooked. The county is being organized by the Liberty Loan campaign. Every farmer, every orchardist, and every vineyardist will be canvassed at his home. He will be shown that his duty is to make a liberal subscription to the Liberty bonds. It will be pointed out to him that not only are the bonds the safest investment he can make, but that he will benefit from the war and the Liberty Loan campaign.

H. W. Wrightson, a Fowler rancher who is known to all farmers, not only in the county but throughout the state, has been named chairman of the Liberty Loan committee of Fowler. He has named a flying squadron of ranchers and orchardists from all parts of the county and this committee will canvass every farmer in the county.

"Fowler made a creditable showing in the last campaign," declared William Nelson, special representative here of the Federal Reserve bank yesterday, "and he has determined this time to surpass his previous record."

On every hand Miss Sarah McCordie, county librarian, finds willing hands and liberal hearts in her effort to bring Fresno county across, even with it not ahead of its apportionment, $1,600, in the $1,000,000 War Library Fund.

To the list of club women and library custodians, already announced, the heads of the various women's clubs of Fresno, city have been added as workers in the cause and all of these are earnestly engaged in effort.

Recent organizations reporting contributions are the Native Daughters, the Friday Afternoon club and the Playgroup club.

Miss McCordie states that she has received excellent reports from several of her custodians throughout the county, especially those at Reedley and Riverdale, both of whom inform her that they will be able easily to raise their proportion of the county fund, if not run something beyond the amount expected of them.
